PREFATORY NOTE.

THE EDITOR has again the privilege of thanking the Subscribers and Patrons of the MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA for the continued support given to the Magazine, and to the Contributors for the various Papers which he has been enabled to publish, including monumental inscriptions gathered in various parts of the world.

For the two illuminated Plates of Arms given with the Pedigree of the Cokayne Family he is indebted to G. E. COKAYNE, Esq., F.S.A., Clarenceux King-of-Arms, which, with the number of engraved seals, make his article very valuable and interesting. Mr. GEORGE GRAZEBROOK, F.S.A., also contributed a Pedigree proved from 1200, which will no doubt attract considerable attention, every descent being covered by sufficient documentary and contemporary evidences; there is also a number of illustrative autographs and seals.

The Registers of Maidstone will finish in the succeeding Volume, and the Editor has to regret the death of the transcriber of them, the Rev. J. CAVE-BROWNE, which took place on 13th June, 1898. He was an indefatigable genealogist and archæologist, and had been one of the Council of the British Archæological Association for some years.

Bible Entries.

FAMILY OF COCKAYNE, FORMERLY COKAYNE.

Communicated by G. E. Cokayne, F.S.A., Clarenceux King of Arms, 1898.

These, which are written in a copy[1] of "The Holy Bible" as "printed by John Field," 1648 (bound up with a copy of the Psalms "collected into English metre," 1655), relate principally to the ten children of Charles, 5th Viscount Cullen, whose great-grandson, the said G. E. Cokayne, is now the possessor of the book.

At the top of the principal title page is written "F. Harpur."[1]

On an outer page is written, within a tablet in the centre, "Ann Warren[2] her book, June 1724," the said tablet, which is surrounded by small oval views of Scripture subjects, being apparently intended to be inscribed (as it here is) with the name of the owner.

On three blank pages, at the beginning, is a copy (in an old handwriting) of the well-known prayer of Prince Eugene of Savoy (died 1736), beginning:—

"O my God, I believe in Thee, but yet strengthen my faith."

On three blank pages, at the end, the following entries are made:—

"Ann Warren, eldest daughter of Borlace Warren, Esq^r^, of Stapleford in the county of Nottingham, was married Aprill y^e^ 18^th^, 1732, to Charles, L^d^ Viscount Cullen, of Rushton, in Northamptonshire.[3]

[1] This book appears to have been originally the property of the Hon. Frances Willoughby (first daughter of William, 6th Lord Willoughby of Parham) who married 6 June 1661 Sir John Harpur of Swarkeston, co. Derby, and who must have written her name therein as "F. Harpur" between that date and 25 August 1679, when she married Charles Henry, Earl of Bellomont. She died without issue 25 May 1714, in her 72nd year, leaving her estate of Grindlow, in Hope, co. Derby, to her great nephew Charles, afterwards 5th Viscount Cullen, above-named, whose father Charles, the 4th Viscount (died 6 April 1716, aged 30), was son and heir of Charles, the 3rd Viscount (died 30 December 1688, aged 30), by the Hon. Catharine Willoughby, sister of the said Countess.

[2] This "Ann Warren, 1724," is apparently Ann, daughter of Sir John Harpur, 3rd Bart. of Calke, co. Derby, by the Hon. Ann Willoughby, another sister of the said Frances, Countess of Bellomont and of the said Catharine, Viscountess Cullen, which Ann Harpur married November 1698 Borlase Warren of Stapleford, Notts, and died his widow in April 1751. The entry may, however, refer to the eldest daughter of the said Borlase and Ann Warren, viz., Ann Warren, aged 21 in 1724, who, eight years later, became Viscountess Cullen.

[3] She was in reality the second, but first surviving daughter of her parents, being the fifth of their fifteen children. She was baptized at Stratton Audley, Oxon, 26 May 1703, being some six

Ann, eldest daughter of Charles, L^d^ Viscount Cullen, was born Tuesday night, Feb. y^e^ 20^th^, 1732-3, at half an hour after nine a clock. Died Aprill y^e^ 29.[1]

Cathren, second daughter of Charles, L^d^ Cullen, was born March y^e^ 12^th^, Tuesday morning, 1733-4. Died y^e^ Satturday after.[2]

Elizabeth, third daughter of Charles, Lord Visc^t^ Cullen, was born June y^e^ 7, Saturday night, at half an hour after 10 a clock, anno domini 1735.[3]

Charles, eldest son to Charles, L^d^ Viscount Cullen, was born July y^e^ 31^st^, Saturday night, at 7 a clock at night, Anno domini 1736.[4]

Elizabeth, daughter of Charles, L^d^ Viscount Cullen, died y^e^ 11^th^ of Nov., 1737.[5]

Francess, fourth daughter of Charles, L^d^ Visc^t^ Cullen, was born March y^e^ 15, Wensday morning at [—] a clock, anno domini 1737-8.[5]

Anna Maria, fifth daughter of Charles, Lord Visc^t^ Cullen, was born Tuesday night three-quarters past ten, April 17^th^, 1739.[6]

Frances, fourth daughter of y^e^ Honble Charles, Lord Visc^t^ Cullen, died 21^st^ day of April, 1740.[5]

Borlace, second son of Charles, Lord Visc^t^ Cullen, was born Sep^r^ 30, Tuesday morning, half an hour past eight a clock, anno Domini 1740.[7]

Frances, sixth daughter of the R^t^ Hon^ble^ Charles, Lord Visc^t^ Cullen, was born on Wednesday y^e^ 19^th^ of May, at half an hour past six in y^e^ morning, anno Domini 1742, and died the beginning of Aug. following.[8]

John, third son of Charles, Lord Visc^t^ Cullen, was born on Tuesday morning at a quarter past two a clock, June 25^th^, 1745.[9] or seven years older than her husband, to whom she was first cousin by her father (whose sister Ann Warren, Viscountess Cullen, was his mother) and second cousin by her mother (Ann Harpur), whose mother (the Hon. Ann Willoughby) was sister of Catherine, Viscountess Cullen, her said husband's grandmother. Her marriage took place at Stapleford, Notts. She, who was her husband's first wife, died 28 June, and was buried 1 July 1754, at St. Peter's, Rushton, co. Northampton.

[1] The baptism of this child, 21 February 1732-3, and her burial, 10 May 1733, are both recorded in the Parish Register of Stapleford aforesaid.

[2] The baptism of this child, 13, and her burial, 17 March 1733-4, are both recorded in the Parish Register of St. Peter's, Rushton.

[3] The birth [not baptism] of this child, 7 June 1735, and her burial, 11 November 1737 [the day of her death], are both recorded as next above.

[4] His birth [not baptism] 31 July 1736 is recorded as next above. He died unmarried in his father's lifetime, aged 29, and was buried 16 December 1765 at St. Peter's, Rushton, as "The Honourable Charles Cockayne."

[5] The birth [not baptism] of this child, 15 March 1737-8, is recorded as next above. It is presumed that her burial in April 1740 took place also at St. Peter's, Rushton.

[6] Her birth [not baptism] as on 16 [not 17] April 1739 is recorded as next above. She, who was the only daughter that survived infancy, married 28 July 1768, at Broughton, co. Northampton, the Rev. Nathaniel Mapletoft, B.A., Rector of Broughton aforesaid, who was buried there 2 February 1782. She died at Market Harborough 3, and was buried 9 April 1825, as "The Hon^ble^ Anna Maria Mapletoft," at All Saints, Rushton, co. Northampton, in her 86th year. She had four children, all of whom died without issue.

[7] His birth and baptism, 30 September 1740, are recorded in the Parish Register of St. Peter's, Rushton. He was the eldest surviving son of his father, whom he succeeded 7 June 1802 in the peerage, but not in the family estates. He died unmarried at St. Albans, Herts, 11 and was buried 21 August 1810, as "Borlase, Lord Viscount Cullen," at All Saints, Rushton, in his 70th year. At his death the issue male of the 1st Viscount, and possibly the title itself, became extinct.

[8] The birth [sic, but query if not meant for baptism] of this child, 8 June 1742, and her burial, 20 August following, are both recorded in the Parish Register of St. Peter's, Rushton.

[9] The record of his birth [not baptism], 25 June 1745, is inserted as next above. He died unmarried in his father's lifetime, aged 22, and was buried at St. Peter's, Rushton, 23 April 1768, as "The Honourable John Cockayne, Esquire."

Mem.—The mother of the above nine children, i.e., the first wife of the 5th Viscount, died at Rushton Hall 28 June and was buried 1 July 1754 at St. Peter's, Rushton, as "The Right Hon^ble^ Lady Ann, Viscountess Cullen." The said Viscount married secondly, 16 December 1754 (within six months of his late wife's death), Sophia, second and youngest daughter and coheir of John Baxter, by Sophia, daughter of Edmund Woodward of Stratton Audley, Oxon, sister and coheir of George Woodward of Stoke Lyne, in that county. They died within a few weeks of each other, he, aged 91 (having enjoyed the title and estates above eighty-six years), on 7 June 1802, and she, aged 63, on 13 July following, and are buried at All Saints, Rushton.

William, fourth son of Charles, Lord Viscᵗ Cullen, by his second wife, Sophia Baxter, was born April the 16th at half hour past five, 1756, Good Friday morning."[1]

The following entries relating to the ten daughters and coheirs of the Hon. William Cockayne,[1] of Rushton Hall, co. Northampton, by Barbara his wife (being the William who was born 16 April 1756, as stated next above), are in his handwriting, they being a continuation by him of a large pedigree of the Cokayne family made for the 1st Viscount Cullen, which belonged (1828-1883) to the Hon. Elizabeth Charlotte Pery, the youngest of these daughters:—

"1. Matilda Sophia, born in London, February 13, 1779.[2]
2. Barbara Maria, born at Thorpe, co. Surry, April 7, 1780.[3]
3. Mary Ann, born in London, December 11, 1781.[4]
4. Georgiana, born at Rushton, co. Northampton, Nov. 17, 1784.[5]
5. Sophia, born at Rheims, in France, June 25, 1786.[6]
6. Caroline Elizabeth, born at Rheims, in France, Oct. 17, 1787.[7]

[1] His baptism, 18 May 1756, is recorded in the Parish Register of St. Peter's, Rushton. He married 11 October 1777, at Rothwell Manor House, co. Northampton, Barbara, daughter and eventually sole heir of George Hill, Serjeant-at-Law, by Anne Barbara, first daughter and coheir of Thomas Medlycott, of Cottingham, in that county. He, who was the second surviving son of his father, succeeded him 7 June 1802 in the family estates, but not in the title. He died at Rushton Hall, without male issue, 8 and was buried 16 October 1809, as "The Honble William Cockayne, son of Charles, Lord Viscount Cullen," at All Saints, Rushton, aged 53. His death occurred but ten months before that of his brother, the 6th Viscount, who was nearly sixteen years his senior. His widow, who by Act of Parliament, 1802, had taken the name and arms of Medlycott, died 2 June 1838 at Northampton, aged 85 (having been nearly thirty years a widow), and was buried with her ancestors at Rothwell aforesaid as "The Honble Barbara Cockayne-Medlycott."

[2] She was born at the house of her maternal grandfather (Serjeant Hill), 20 Charlotte Street, Bedford Square, and was baptized 15 March 1779 at St. George's, Bloomsbury; married 31 December 1804, at Walcot, near Bath, the Rev. Robert Austen, LL.D., many years Rector of Midleton, co. Cork, who died 4 November 1854 at Southsea, and was buried at Milton, Hants, aged 83. She, who by Royal Warrant 23 September 1836 was granted the precedence of a Viscount's daughter, becoming thus the Honourable Matilda Sophia Austen, died at Hadwell Lodge, co. Cork, 23 and was buried 27 February 1869 at St. Anne's, Shandon, Cork, aged 90. She had issue two sons, who both died unmarried in her lifetime, and seven daughters, of whom four survived her.

[3] She was born in Thorpe House, and was baptized 18 May 1780 at Thorpe, co. Surrey, where the previous baptism of her elder sister was, at the same time, again registered. She died unmarried at Rushton Hall 23 September and was buried 1 October 1825 at All Saints, Rushton, aged 45.

[4] She was born in Welbeck Street, and baptized 28 March 1782 at St. Marylebone, where she married 6 April 1811 William Adams, LL.D., Fellow of the College of Advocates, Doctors' Commons, London, who died at Thorpe, co. Surrey, 11 and was buried there 17 June 1851, aged 79. She, who by Royal Warrant 4 September 1838 was granted the precedence of a Viscount's daughter, becoming thus the Honourable Mary Anne Adams, died at Thorpe aforesaid 16 and was buried there 21 June 1873, aged 91. She had issue four sons and four daughters, all of whom survived her, the youngest (a son) being, at the date of her death, upwards of 48 years of age. Under her testamentary directions that son took by Royal Licence, 15 August 1873, the name and arms of Cokayne in lieu of those of Adams, becoming thus George Edward Cokayne, and (subsequently) owner of Rothwell Manor House above-named.

[5] Her baptism is recorded 13 December 1784 in the Parish Register of All Saints, Rushton, as is also her marriage 11 October 1824 to John Edmund Maunsell, sometime an officer in the Royal Horse Artillery (younger brother of T. P. Maunsell hereafter mentioned), who, having survived her, died 20 January 1869, aged 81. She, who by Royal Warrant 23 September 1836 was granted the precedence of a Viscount's daughter, becoming thus the Honourable Georgiana Maunsell, died without issue 19 December 1864, aged 80. They, who had lived many years at 21 Lansdown Place, Cheltenham, both died at 15 Sussex Square, Paddington, and were buried at Kensal Green Cemetery.

[6] She was born in the Rue de la Coutuniere, Porte de la Promenade, and was baptized 28 June 1786 at St. Jacques, Rheims. She died unmarried at Thorpe Malsor House, co. Northampton, 20 and was buried 26 January 1828 at All Saints, Rushton, aged 41.

[7] She (who used the name of Eliza [not Elizabeth] as her second Christian name) was born in the Rue de Ville, Porte de Paris, and was baptized 19 October 1787 at St. Mary Magdalene, Rheims. She married 6 April 1811 at St. Marylebone (the same time and place as her elder sister) Thomas Philip Maunsell, of Thorpe Malsor House, co. Northampton, M.P. for North Northamptonshire 1835-1837, and for many years Colonel of the Northamptonshire Militia, who, having survived her, died 4 March 1866, aged 84. She, who by Royal Warrant 23 September 1836 was granted the precedence of a Viscount's daughter, becoming thus the Honourable Caroline Eliza Maunsell, died 12 March 1860, aged 72. She had issue five sons and three daughters, of whom all but one daughter survived her. Both she and her husband died and were buried at Thorpe Malsor.

[1] She was born at Petergate, and baptized 10 August 1789 at St. Michael Le Belfry, York. She died unmarried at Thorpe Malsor House above-named, 10 and was buried 17 March 1824 at All Saints, Rushton, aged 34.

[2] She was born when her father was Comptroller of the Household to the (Earl of Westmorland) Viceroy of Ireland 1789—95. Her baptism is said to be (but is not) registered at St. Werburgh's, Dublin. She died unmarried at Worthing, co. Sussex, 1 and was buried 11 September 1814 at All Saints, Rushton, aged 23.

[3] Her baptism is said to be (but is not) registered at St. Peter's, Dublin. She married 9 August 1816 at St. George's, Bloomsbury, William Assheton, of Downham Hall and Cuerdale, both co. Lancaster, who, having survived her for twenty-three years, died at Downham 8 August 1858, aged 70, and was buried there. She died at Brandon House, co. Warwick, 25 July 1835, and was buried at Downham, aged 40, leaving issue two sons and one daughter, all of whom survived her.

She, who on her mother's death (2 June 1838) had inherited the estate of Bury House, Cottingham, co. Northampton (formerly that of her great-grandfather, Thomas Medlycott above-named), died there 21 April 1883, aged 87, being the last survivor of her family. She had issue four sons and three daughters, of whom the eldest son and the two elder daughters survived her.

Freeman.

The Rev. William Freeman was the son of Charles Freeman, who is said by Howell, in his "Pietas Londinensis," published in 1714, to have been then the Curate of St. Botolph, Aldersgate. William Freeman preached as Lecturer before the Lord Mayor in 1730, but on 10th December 1733 one Leonard Howard, M.A., was Curate of the parish, and appointed Chaplain to the Prince of Wales.

The above facts appear in a little book by the Rev. T. Selby Henrey, Curate of the parish, entitled "St. Botolph without Aldersgate: its Church and Parish Records," published by subscription in 1895. The book contains (pp. 40-42) lengthy particulars of a dispute between Mr. Freeman and Dr. Moore, the "Minister," as to the duties and fees of the former, who complains of unjust treatment. The particulars are amusing, and include some verses upon Mr. Freeman, of which he complains, which were written upon a pane of glass in the "Mourning Bush Tavern."

[1] All these families, here found at Geneva, seem to have been of French Huguenot origin. Jérôme Bizot, admitted as Burgess of Geneva 15 Feb. 1706, was from Châtillon-sur-Loire; David Borel, admitted an inhabitant 29 Aug. 1713, was from Grenoble; while the Mallets derive from Jaques Mallet, a native of Rouen, who came to Geneva before 1558, and acquired the bourgeoisie in 1566.

[2] Jaques Dutilh settled in business at Lyons at the age of 40, after many years' service in Prussia. At 50 he married, and three months later he died of pleurisy on his road to Geneva.

[3] Jaques Dutilh dit Rigaud was brought up by his maternal grandmother, Isabeau Rigaud, who removed to Geneva on her daughter's death in 1711, and became known under her name. At the age of 19 he was placed in the business house of Silvestre at Amsterdam, and remained with them five or six years, during which the grandmother died.

Here appears the following Memorandum under date September 29, 1653:—
"Henry Pierce, of the Towne of Maidstone, in the County of Kent, being chosen by the Parishioners to bee Register of the said Towne and Parish, was this day sworn before me, John Sanders, Maior of the same Towne and Parish, and Justice of the Peace there: and I doe approve of him to bee Register according to an Act of this present Parliament entitled an Act touchinge Mariages and Registring thereof and also touchinge Births and Buryals."

* Communicated by the Rev. J. CAVE-BROWNE, M.A.—continued from Vol. II. (Third Series), p. 305.

(Signed) "JOHN SANDERS."

By this Act the publication was required on three consecutive Sundays, at first in the Parish Church, and subsequently with the alternative of the Market Place: and the marriage itself was to be performed in the presence of the Mayor or some Justice of the Peace for the town.

In this transcript a copy of the first entries is given in extenso as a type of the rest; but after that, only the names of the persons married, and their parish where specified, and being other than Maidstone. No mention is here made of those Publications of Banns which are not followed by the record of the marriage. It may be noted that of the 700 and more Publications which took place during six years of the "Commonwealth," i.e. from 1653 to 1659, not more than 450 marriages are registered as having been solemnized in this Church.

It is not improbable that, so many of them being "Out-Parishioners," after the Banns had been published in the Church or the Market Place of the county town, some of them resorted to their respective Parish Churches to be married, of which mention is occasionally made, and possibly many were not married at all.

Nov. 8 Thomas Burbridg, of St Margarett's, shipwright, sonn of John Burbridg, of the same, and Elizabeth Hoad, daughter of John Hoad, of this towne and parishe, were published in the Parish Church Oct. 23, 30, and Nov. 6, and married before John Sanders, gent., Justice of Peace of this towne and parish. John Sanders.

— Thomas Worledg, late of this towne and parish, marriner, and Susanna Morten, of East Maling, daughter of John Morten, of Ashford . . . . were married at West Farleigh before Augustine Skinner, Esq., etc.

Jan. 24 Nicholas ffuggle, of Brenchley, butcher, and Ann Bets, of this towne and parish, widdow . . . . were married before Robert Heath, Maior.

— William Danne, of Chatham, shipwright, s. of Stephen Dann, of East Farleigh, and Elizabeth Swan, of this towne and parish, were published in the Parish Church Dec. 18, 25, and Jan. 6. [No record of marriage.]

Jan. 10 Robert Vane, thridtwister, s. of Justinian Vane, and Elizabeth Tomlyn, all of this towne and parish, before Robert Heath, Maior.

Mar. 7 Alexander Brown, fuller, and Elizabeth Peene, d. of Elizabeth Peene, widdow, all of this parish.

Mar. 7 Richard Cox, of Aylisford, shipwright, and Sara Austen, of this parish, widow, etc.

Mar. 14 Robert Tilden, husbandman, s. of ffrancis Tilden, and Elizabeth, daughter of William Lewis, all of this parish.

Mar. 28* John Richardson, marriner, and Mary Mallard, both of this parish.

Mar. 27 Edward Ward, thridtwister, and Elizabeth, daughter of Henry Smith.

April 17 William Dowell, of Strood, taylor, and Margaret Beale, of this parish, widdow.

* The seemingly hap-hazard irregularity of dates in the following entries may be thus explained. From the year 1653 to 1659 each page is headed "Publications and Marriages," shewing that it was a Banns' Book as well as a Marriage Register. The entry was evidently made when the banns were "put in," and the date of the marriage added subsequently.

Mar. 27 Cutbert Collens, cordwander,* and Dynah Figden, widdow.
April 3 Ralph Cooke, cordwander, and Elizabeth Pemble.
April 10 John Savage, jun'r, carpenter, sonn of John Savage, sen'r, of this parish, and M^rs^ Chritian Lee, of the parish of S^t^ Andrewes in the Citty of Canterbury, daughter of John Lee, of the same parish, gent., Alderman of the Citty aforesaid.
April 11 Thomas Hubbard, of Boxley, husbandman, and Ann Steele, of this parish, widdow.
April 11 Robert Hartridg, husbandman, and Ann Sawell, daughter of Thomas Sawell.
April 17 Thomas Wottle, husbandman, and Ann Hodges.
May 8 Robert Baker, butcher, and Elizabeth ffetherstone, the d. of George ffetherstone, of Boughton Monchelsey, and published in the Market-place.
May 20 John Page, of Boughton Monchalsey, butcher, and Jane Barnes, d. of Thomas Barnes, of Bersted. M.†
May 1 John Maddox, coardwander, s. of Edward Maddox, and Elizabeth Weston.
May 8 John Cock, of Chetham, ropemaker, s. of John Cock, of Woolwich, and Ann, d. of Thomas Taylor, late of Boughton Monchalsey, deceased. M.
May 16 Henry Cuthall, fflax-dresser, s. of Robert Cruthall, deceased, and Martha Marbrook.
May 22 James Longley, barber, and Mary Boade.
May 16 Phillip Gray, of Ailisforde, husbandman, and Elizabeth Burwash.
June 6 John Webb, of Harrisham, clothier, and Elizabeth Hinksell. M.
May 23 Robert Crispe, thridtwister, s. of John Crispe, deceased, and Mary Woollett.
May 27 Thomas Wale, coardwander, and Mary Tillett, of the Citty of Rochester.
May 25 Henry Catland, husbandman, and ffrances Jenkyns, both of Marden. [No record of publication.]
July 18 John Davis, husbandman, and Sarah, d. of Samuel Mercer.
June 13 Thomas Barret, husb., s. of Thomas Barret, late of this parish, deceased, and Mary Coale, d. of Dynah Coale, of Hawkhurst, widdow.
June 15 Edward Catlet, of Gravesend, and Patience Bingham, of Boughton Monchalsey.

Here appears an entry to this effect: "Lambert Godfery, Esq're, doth make exception to the proceedinge of the marriage of Abraham Hawkes and Mary Emyot, for that the same Mary Emyot doth seem to be not of competent understanding to dispose of herself in marriage." Three entries later appears the following:

July 6 The exception made by Lambert Godfery, Esq're, against the proceeding to marriage of Abraham Hawkes and Mary Emeot abovesaid, being heard before Lambert Godfery aforesaid, George Duke, Richard Beale, Esq'res, and Justices of the Peace of this County, is satisfied and discharged. And the marriage of the said Abraham Hawkes and Mary Emeot was solemnized before the said Justices, etc.
Aug. 25 John Lane the younger, thridtwister, and Martha Lambe, d. of M^r^ ffrancis Lambe.
July 10 Richard Burch, husbandman, and Mary Talhurst, both of Linton. M.
July 18 William Bond and Margret Page, both of Borden.
July 25 William Cousin and Elizabeth Pemale, both of East Malling.
July 27 John Wise and Cathrine Wittborne, widow, both of Rainham.
Sep. 14 Stephen fferrall, tanner, and Elizabeth Smith, widow, both of Hollingbourn. M.

* So spelt in this and the following entry. It then passes into the present form of "cordwainer." This does not represent, as the name might suggest, a twister of cord, but a worker in a particular class of leather, being a corruption of the French word "cordovanier," a worker in Cordovan leather, and has now come to be synonymous with "shoemaker."

† The letter "M" signifies that banns were published in the Market Place. See p. 26.

† John Crompe (or Crumpe) appears to have belonged to an Otham family. He was appointed by Archbishop Abbot to the Vicarage of Detling in 1616; afterwards he became Assistant to Thomas Wilson; then Curate of Maidstone, with the Chapelry of Loose attached; and at Wilson's death succeeded him at the Parish Church, where he remained till the Restoration, when he refused to conform, and retired to Boxley. Reviews.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. VII., January—March 1898. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE parts now before us still maintain the character of their predecessors, the plate of Mrs. Mary E. Rath Merrill of Ohio opening the January Number, designed by Mr. Will Foster, clearly shewing what variety may be included in engraving modern bookplates. If American engravers generally produce such work as this, they will not need the tutelage of the College of Arms, as is implied in the Editor's notice. The Number also contains Notes on Swiss Bookplates, by Jean Grellet, illustrated by four examples. These, and the continuation of Guernsey bookplates by Miss Edith Carey, with five plates of the Bonomy family, amply illustrate the Part. The February Number has also an excellent frontispiece in the plate of J. Winifred Spenceley of Boston, U.S.A. Two other examples are given of art work in the plates of Walter Conway Prescott and William Archer Butterfield, where odd volumes form the frontage of each. The Part for March has several Trophy bookplates, and also an article by the Editor, who gives us five examples; there is also an article by F. J. Thairlwall on those of eminent lawyers, and samples are given of two. The plates for identification number now 280, this latter being a very fair example of work.

Artists and Engravers of British and American Bookplates: A Book of reference for bookplate and print collectors. By HENRY W. PINCHAM, Vice-President of the Ex Libris Society, etc. London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner and Co., Charing Cross Road. 1897.

THIS handsome 4to is justly dedicated to the late Sir Augustus Wollaston Franks, K.C.B., whose collection of plates was the largest in the world, and are now all given by him to the Nation. The Author begins with a very modest preface, in which he states how he commenced his labours, and the introduction is a masterly history of bookplate engravers from William Marshall in 1670 to Stacy Marks, Walter Crane, etc. The first plate page has two modern examples—that of Miss Dicksee by Anning Bell, and J. Lumsden Propert. Bell has forty-five examples mentioned. A most painstaking plate shewn is by Edwin Davis French of New York, and engraved for the John Crerar Library, with the donor's portrait; this is alone shewn out of eighty-four specified, and is quite sufficient to stamp the artist. Another is by C. G. Harper—the only one ascribed to him, we regret to notice. The plate by W. F. Hopson of New Haven, Connecticut, is quite worthy of him, and the plate of Mr. and Mrs. Aylward is a good example of book grouping, and the effect produced by a lighted lamp is excellently depicted. An Egyptian design for George Clulow is by Mr. J. Leighton. Mr. W. Monk's plate being printed in a dark brown has a marked effect on the white ground; it shews a handsome peacock viewing the rising sun in the distance. An example of William Sharpe's is, we see, partly done by our old friend Barak Longmate, and is a spirited delineation of a tiger, and is lettered George Potter; and another one of Claude Martin's by Stothard and Birrell, done in the last century, is a fine picture of a lion shewn standing on a rock with the sea around him, he holding in his dexter paw a sword, and in the other a flag, and with the rising sun bursting behind the city in the distance. A classical design by C. Pows in 1793 is very effective, as also is one to S. Rouviere Day in 1896 by S. Vinycomb. Mr. W. R. Weyer has his own plate, and for varied design it is the finest shewn in the book, although many would contend it was not heraldic. Mr. J. Walter West's plate for S. Reynolds Hall is as classic as one could desire. We are sorry there are not examples shewn of Cleghorn's and Utting's works, for with their deaths the art of engraving coats of arms on wood has entirely died away, as we cannot at the present day say there is any one to succeed them in the art.

Altogether the Work is a most painstaking monument of Mr. Pincham, and is worthy of being patronized by every gentleman possessing a library. We trust the Publishers may be looking forward for a second edition, although we contend that second editions of such a work are not advisable, militating as they do against the value of the first edition. The Author so often has to give our Journal as having produced the various plates previously that we feel quite alarmed at our notoriety as bookplate collectors.

Two Centuries of Soho: its Institutions, Firms, and Amusements. London: Truslove and Hanson, 143 Oxford Street, W. 1898.

GRAND Old Soho has again found its historians, and more loving and graphic ones than its own Clergy could not be found. So that their "good deeds may follow them," we append their names:—The Rev. J. H. Cardwell, M.A., Rector, the Rev. H. B. Freeman, M.A., and the Rev. G. C. Wilton, M.A. The work has a Preface by Sir Walter Besant, and is dedicated to Thomas F. Blackwell, Esq., a gentleman born in the parish, and its noblest benefactor as well as its larger employer of labour.

Soho from its conception shook itself free from St. Giles, and started a career of respectability and with a class of society which was the best in its day. Only becoming known about 1630-40, there were inhabitants enough in the parish to commence erecting a church and making its most direct street—Wardour Street—a tablet shewing that it was built in 1668, and no doubt named after Wardour Castle, for in all England there are but two Wardours—the Castle and the street. Before the Church was finished the nobility and gentry began building and inhabitating their respective houses, some of which now shew how commodious they were, and how the ceilings were panelled out by the Italian artists, who from London spread their art and skill right through the country, taking in after years such a model as the Lady Chapel at Westminster to other churches or colleges. Even after, in 1730-50, when St. George, Hanover Square, was built, then in the Oxford Fields, and the titled classes passed onwards, there came a class of literary, musical, artistic, and other gifted votaries, who revelled in the place of those who had gone more westwards, making Wardour Street, with Sir James Thornhill, his son-in-law Hogarth, and Flaxman (whom the Work misses altogether) social neighbours. Later still came the learned musicians, Mozart, Handel, and others, and still later the Novello and Dolby families, whose talented daughter often sang in the premises now occupied by the "Wardour Press." Each centenary of the Church has been celebrated by a dinner, and a marble tablet placed on the outer wall commemorating it.

The Work will always be esteemed by the inhabitants of Soho particularly, and the labours entailed will, we trust, be met by the generous support of the public, so that several editions may be called for. The Work is well illustrated, both by old plates and present portraits, and is printed and issued at comparatively a small sum, hardly enough to cover the initial expenses.

The Victoria Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. V., No. 3, January 1898. Virginia, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Magazine is to hand, and we find the Articles as varied as before, the first being the decisions of the Virginia General Court, and the second, List of Early Land Patents and Grants. From a perusal of the last, they speak of 100,000 and 157,000 acres as an ordinary transaction, shewing how freely the land was dealt with. There is also a good genealogy of the Cockes of England, from whom Cokayne descended, who was created a Baron and Viscount in 1642; and the genealogy of the Moseley family is given with others. Altogether it is a very good Number.

[1] This Jaques Mallet was fifth in descent from Jean Mallet, a merchant of Rouen, whose son Jaques I. (1530—98) came to Geneva about 1558, and acquired the bourgeoisie in 1566. He m. in 1562, for his second wife, Laura, dau. of Léonard Sartoris of Quiers, in Piedmont, who had died in the prisons of the Inquisition, and sister to Nicolas Sartoris, a martyr for the Religion 4 May 1557, and had by her, with others, Jaques (II.) Mallet (1575—1657), who in 1600 m. Louise, dau. of Guillaume Varro and Perrette Chevalier, and became the father of, with others, Jaques (III.) Mallet (1602—1677), who m. in 1634 Jeanne, dau. of Abraham Thabuis, and begat, with others, Etienne Mallet (1643—1736), father, by his first wife Hélène (m. 1675; d. 1690), dau. of Pierre Rilliet and Sara Trembley, of the above-named Jaques IV., who flourished between 1680—1767.

Three branches of this distinguished family are re-established in France, deriving respectively from Gabriel (1572—1651), elder brother to Jaques II., and from two younger brothers of Jaques III., viz., Louis (1605—1674) and Joseph (1610—1676). From Gabriel come the family of Protestant bankers at Paris, of whom Alphonse, Baron Mallet de Chalmassy, is the head. Among Joseph's descendants are General François de Mallet (1765—1839), created a Baron by Louis XVIII. in 1816, who left issue by his marriage in 1807 with Anna, dau. of Robert, fifth Viscount Molesworth; and General Paul Henri Mallet-Prevost (1756—1835), who, settling in the U.S.A. c. 1794, became the creator of Frenchtown, and the founder of an American branch. All of his three sons by Jeanne Elizabeth Patry left children, viz., Brigadier-General André Mallet-Prevost (1780—1850), who m. Hannah Coulter; Henri Mallet-Prevost (1783—), who m. Emma Reading; and André Louis (1785—1872), who m. Mary Exton. The daughters of Baron Molesworth (1808—1886), son of Baron François de Mallet, by his marriage in 1840 with Indiana Sikes, viz., Anna and Ernestine, m. respectively Augustus Cunnyngham and Major Frederic Morgan.

[2] As an opponent of the French Revolution Mallet du Pan made himself an European reputation, and has been called the "French Burke." His "Mémoires et Correspondance" were published by M. Sayons in 1851, and his "Correspondance avec la Cour de Vienne" in 1884, with an introduction by M. Taine. Mr. Pitt appointed his son John Lewis Mallet to a post in the Audit Office in 1800, in recognition of Mallet du Pan's labours.

[3] Trophime Gérard, Marquis and Comte de Lally-Tollendal (1751—1830), was son, by Félicité Crafton, of the unfortunate general, Thomas Arthur Lally (1702—1766), and grandson of the Jacobite, Sir Gerard Lally. Thus he was of Irish extraction, and derived his name of Tollendal from the ancestral castle of Tullendaly or Tollynadaly, near Tuam.

[4] Herman Katenkamp, the eldest son by his second wife, Elizabeth Biscamp, of Johann Katenkamp, a Minister in Bremen, was naturalized in the 23rd year of George II. (1750). He had then been twenty years in England, having, at the age of 14, been offered by John Baring, whose family also came from Bremen, a place in his counting-house.

Naval Records.*

It has recently been my good fortune to have had opportunities of making researches amongst the great mass of invaluable Naval Records now stored in the Public Record Office, so I venture to contribute a few extracts from them. My object in so doing is to give genealogists and others searching for information about our naval ancestors an idea of the interesting particulars they may find; for although the Naval Record Society has well commenced its most important work, some time must yet elapse before its publications become generally known. To some persons fiction is of interest, but bound up in the old dilapidated faded pages of our sailors' journals, actions and deeds of daring lie buried far stranger than any fiction. When the accounts of the sea fights, and events chronicled from day to day, are read, and it is realized that these old leaves were written almost at the hour of their occurrence, and contain the actual words of the actors, who cannot but feel that here indeed the biographer and historian have a treasure of which every word should be preserved, for are these not the title-deeds of our claim to be Mistress of the Sea?

In our search it must not be hastily concluded that Captains', Lieutenants', and Masters' Journals or Logs are duplicates, for each will frequently be found to contain distinct facts, and will thus enable a complete narrative to be written.

The Admiralty Orders and Instructions will often furnish the object of a voyage, the dates of Officers' Commissions, etc.

The Pay Books give particulars concerning a ship and her crew, their services, amount of pay, and sometimes in case of death a valuable note of the date and next of kin.

In the Courts-Martial Books are most interesting accounts of engagements at sea; neither must Captains' Letters, etc., nor various miscellaneous papers be overlooked. In short, only those who have searched amongst these Records can estimate at its worth every scrap of paper they contain, and appreciate their great value to individual families, and for writing the naval history of our Nation.

From the Journal of Lieut. Thomas Blake, who was 1st Lieut. of the "Cambridge," a third-rate of 70 guns and 420 men, commanded by Capt. Symon Foulkes, we have this account of the Battle of Beachy Head:†—

June 1690, Munday 30. Wind Between y^e^ N. & E. Beacheyhead N. 10 Lea. Beacheyhead at y^e^ same time bore N. from us about 10 Lea. turning to windward in sight of y^e^ ffrench fleete.

Lieut. James Stewart of the "Mountague," a third-rate of 62 guns and 355 men, at that time commanded by Capt. Thomas Leighton, records:—

† As to the composition of the Fleets Lieut. Blake says:—"25^th^ June. This day about 12 at noone we saw y^e^ ffrench fleete to y^e^ Westward of us they being about 120 saile small & greate, we anchored of y^e^ Wight" [etc.].—"29^th^. This day 9 saile of Dutchmen of Warr came into the ffleete."

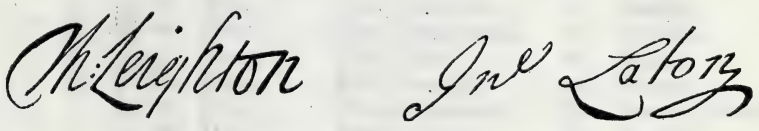
Jnt Worrell the Master gives a little further information. He writes :—

About 6 this evening espied a sail & at 7 came up with it, prov'd a french privateer, we engaged, and about 10 shot his maamast by the Bord, he yeilded, we sent our boat abord for ye Capt. & his officers afterwards for the rest of the men [etc.].

13th. The carpenter put a peice of Fish upon ye Foremast wch was shot by the French Privateer.

21st. Sent ashore ye Corps of our Capt. Jno Layton [etc.]. Capt. Symon Foulk came from London to comand the ship.



Charnock in his "Biographia Navalis," states that Capt. Thomas Leighton served on land as a Volunteer at the siege of Cork Sep. 1690, and that he died on the 9th October, probably of disease. Also that Capt. John Laton was killed whilst commanding the "Mountague" on the 2nd January 1690-1. Although these two officers spelt and signed their names differently, I find some grounds for supposing that they were brothers.

The Pay Books of the "Mountague," No. 372, at the Record Office gives these entries :—

Whence.	Time Discharge.
2nd Aug. 1689. Sea. Thò. Leighton, Comand.	9 Oct. 1690. 435d at 10s p. diem, £217 10 0 Paid to Mr Doddington, 16 June 1692.

"The London Gazette," No. 2626, January 8 to 12, 1690, has this account :—

Attached to the Journal of Robt. Thompson, who was 1st Lieutenant of "The Dunkirk," a 52-gun ship, Capt. James Ward, is the following List of Deaths. The Journal runs from 21 April 1692 to 6 May 1693, but the List only commences on the 17th October 1692 when the ship was at Spithead. She sailed on the unfortunate expedition to the West Indies in the squadron of Sir Francis Wheeler, on the 9th January following, being at Madeira on the 26th January, Barbadoes 1st March, Martinique 1st April, and St. Christopher when the Journal ends. Charnock in his biography of Sir Francis Wheeler relates very fully the misfortunes of this expedition.

NOTES TO PEDIGREE OF HOPTON OF SUFFOLK AND SOMERSET.*

Of this family the three most prominent members have been: (1) Sir Owen Hopton (died 1591), Lieutenant of the Tower of London; (2) his grandson Sir Arthur (died 1650), Ambassador to Spain; (3) the great-grandson of Sir Owen and nephew of Sir Arthur, Ralph, Lord Hopton (died 1652), the Royalist General.

The family is, doubtless, connected with that of Hopton of Armley, by Leeds, co. York,† though not legitimately. A Hopton lady was the probable ancestress, but the ancestor was clearly Sir Robert Swillington of Swillington, also near Leeds, co. York, who in his will, proved 22 July 1391, left £20 to Thomas Hopton, bastard ("a Thomas de Hopton, bastardo"‡). This Thomas Hopton heads the pedigree of the family which has now our attention.

The pedigree set forth at Harvey's Visitation of Suffolk in 1561 is, in its first generations, palpably an invention to demonstrate a legitimacy which did not exist. It shews Thomas Hopton as son of a fictitious Robert Hopton, whereas the will above quoted, as well as the circumstances which followed, prove him to have been the illegitimate son of Sir Robert Swillington. Further, it shews Thomas Hopton's son John to have married a Swillington lady, whereas it is perfectly clear, as will be shewn, that John Hopton's wife, by whom his issue, was of the family of Savile. And as that alliance was not to be ignored, an extra and fictitious John Hopton was interpolated to represent it!

Blore, in "History of Rutland" (1811), profiting, doubtless, by the documents cited in Blomefield's "Norfolk" (1809), amends the error; and of his pedigree, that which accompanies this paper is a development and occasional correction, by means of the additional material, genealogical and biographical, which in the course of the greater part of a century has accumulated.§

† A pedigree of Hopton of Armley is comprised in the "Yorkshire Pedigrees" collected by Mr. Joseph Foster, who, however, recommends that it be received "with considerable reservation." The origin here given to the family of Suffolk and Somerset appears to be entirely fictitious.

‡ Sir Robert Swillington's will, in Latin, is at Somerset House (Rous No. 8, fo. 60). There is an English abstract of it with Lansdowne MSS. ("Genealogical Collections," 860 A, fo. 379^b), and a shorter English abstract in the "Testamenta Vetusta" of Nicolas.

§ Blomefield's references are found in vol. x., p. 128, etc. The Hopton pedigree in Suckling's "Suffolk" is the Visitation pedigree unaltered.

Broadsides of Edmund Burke Printed, 1778.

John Hopton, son of the Thomas named in Sir Robert Swillington's will, succeeded to the Swillington estates by a settlement of entail. The deed itself is not discovered, but there is frequent reference to it, and the tradition, no doubt, formed the basis of the following homely story gathered from the villagers on the estate at Yoxford in Suffolk circa 1655, and related in the Reyce MS.* :—

> Cockfield Hall [in Yoxford] was built by one of the family of Sydney. The last knight of that family entailed his estate to all his children and several other of his kindred, and in the close he put in the name of a little child, a kinsman that was then present, at the request of his lady who, as is said, desired to put in little Hopton too. His answer was, "Hop long it shall see it come at him." But all the issue male of Sydney died, and all the next which he had named, and the estate came to him who was Sir Arthur Hopton, father of Sir Owen Hopton, Lieutenant of the Tower of London in the time of Q. Elizabeth.

In this relation of circumstances which had happened more than two centuries back, tradition had, as was only natural, mixed error of detail with the main fact. For "Sydney"—which family never had these manors—must be read Swillington,—and for "Sir Arthur Hopton" must be read his great-grandfather, John Hopton. Sir Arthur was the first of the family to live at Cockfield Hall, which, indeed, he built; he had been dead a hundred years, and the villagers' mistake is thus easily understood. The last knight of the Swillingtons was Sir Roger, son of the Sir Robert who, in 1391, had by his will bequeathed a legacy to his natural son, Thomas Hopton. Sir Roger made the entail, and in it, at the request of his lady, had included "the little Hopton," viz., John, the son of Thomas, who in 1418, when Sir Roger died, was about ten years old. The Knight left, besides his widow Joan, a son John, and a daughter Margaret, married to Sir John Gra (=Grey) of South Ingleby, co. Lincoln. These were in the entail, and also Elizabeth, a cousin. The son John was married to Joan, the heiress of Roos of Wissett, Suffolk, but died s.p. a year after his father; the elder widow Joan, who had been largely dowered with lands, died in 1428, and the daughter Margaret in 1430. The cousin Elizabeth and her husband Robert Sampson (and later her second husband Bartholomew Whitfield) released their rights to John Hopton, who being now (1430) of age was, in virtue of the entail, put into possession by the Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk.†

Young Hopton had not had very "long to hop." In 1427, when nineteen, his prospects had been thought sufficiently promising to render him eligible as a husband even to a daughter of the House of Savile of Thornhill. The contract of marriage‡ is a curious and interesting paper still extant. It was made at Thornhill, co. York, 26 February 5 Henry VI. (1427), between Thomas Savile, Esq.,§ of the first part, William Scargill and John Rishworth, having charge and management of the marriage of John Swillington the son of Thomas Hopton, on the other part. John Swillington was to wed and have to wife Margaret, the daughter of Thomas Savile, which wedding should be had at Thornhill after the close of Paschal next, at which time the two trustees should make estate to John Swillington and Margaret then his wife of the lands and tenements in Elmshall, Kirkby, Acworth, and Thweng, in which the trustees were enfeoffed, to them and their issue, or in default to the heirs of John Swillington. Thomas Savile was to have the charge and governance of the young married couple, and to find them in all things according

* The Reyce MS. is a collection of matter in connection with the county of Suffolk made by Robert Reyce of Preston, Suffolk (temp. Elizabeth—Charles I.), and after his death in 1638 continued, it is supposed, by his nephew, Robert Appleton. The MS. being in the possession of Lord Thurlow, was given by him in 1803 to the Heralds' College, where it remains. (Introduction to "Supplement to Suffolk Traveller."—Page.) The quotation above is derived from Davy's MSS. (British Museum), in which the notes of Reyce are frequently used.

† Documents cited in Blomefield's "History of Norfolk," vol. x., p. 130, etc.; Suckling's "History of Suffolk," vol. ii., p. 136, etc.; Page's "Supplement to Suffolk Traveller," p. 284, etc.

§ Thomas Savile, afterwards knighted, succeeded his cousin as head of the family; died 1449. (Foster's "Yorkshire Pedigrees.") to their degree at his own proper cost. And "at what time that God fortunes any of the reversions [as by entail] may fall to John Swillington, after the decease of Margaret the wife of Sr John Graa, Knight, Dame Johan the wife of Sr Roger Swillington, or of any 'other," he is to bring same into same estate. Also Thomas Savile is to pay to John Swillington, William Scargill, and Thomas Wombell 400 marks, and they are to allow to Thomas Savile all the expenses incurred by him in behalf of John Swillington since the day of the marriage. We observe that throughout the deed young Hopton is called Swillington. There is a note at end stating that he was then "in nonage," and of "full age" 29 November 8 Henry VI. (1429); it is therefore gathered that he was born in 1408.

The manors or lands which came to Hopton from the Swillingtons are enumerated in the printed Calendar of Inquisitions P.M., "Joh'es Hopton, Armiger," 19 Edward IV., and "Johanna quæ fuit uxor Rogeri Swillington," 6 Henry VI. They were in counties York, Suffolk, Lincoln (Castle Carlton only), Kent (East Greenwich only), Leicester, Nottingham, Derby, and Norfolk. In Suffolk the chief manors were Blythburgh (the manor-house of which was called Westwood) and Yoxford, adjoining which latter were other manors now united to it as members, one of these being Cockfield, which, however, had not belonged to Swillington, but to the family of De Norwiche, and, seemingly, had been purchased by John Hopton many years after his acquisition of the other manors.

He appears to have settled at Westwood in 1430 and rapidly to have taken a prominent position in Suffolk, of which, with Norfolk, he was Sheriff in 1436-7, and again in 1444-5. When the Civil War between the Red and White Rose factions had broken out, and partisans were sought by either side, he is mentioned in the Paston Letters, date 1456, as one of the "few gentlemen and men of substance in Suffolk, where, in Blything Hundred, Hopton is great." He had lost his Savile wife in 1452, when he obtained licence by Letters Patent to found a chantry in Blythburgh Church in honour of St. Margaret, and for daily celebration of mass for the welfare of his soul and that of Margaret his late wife.* At this time also it appears that he built or at least embellished "the Hopton Chapel" at the east end of the north aisle, probably intending it for his burial, of which, however, there is evidence elsewhere.†

After the death of Margaret Savile he married, as his second wife, Agnes Heveningham, of an old and neighbouring Suffolk family; she lived but a few years, and bore him no child; and thirdly, in 1557, he married Thomasine, daughter and heir of John Barrington of Rayleigh, Essex, but who previously had had two husbands: 1, William Lunsford of Lunsford, Sussex; 2, William Sydney of Penshurst, Kent.‡ She survived Hopton twenty years, and is shewn in the pedigrees to have borne him a son, Robert; his heir, William, and two daughters were the children of Margaret Savile.

John Hopton died 10 November 1478, and was buried in the fine Church of Walberswick (a chapel of Blythburgh), which had been building many years and was not then finished. The note-book of Harvey, Clarencieux King of

* Suckling ("History of Suffolk," vol. ii., p. 153) mentions this chantry and gives reference. He adds, however, that as the Dissolution accounts contain no mention of it, it has been doubted that the endowment was ever effected. Possibly for that reason John Hopton was not buried here.

† "The Hopton Chapel" has some fine carved woodwork shewing Hopton or Swillington heraldry. It formerly contained two tombs, one of which was thought to be John Hopton's. They are figured in Joshua Kirby's "Twelve Prints," 1748 (British Museum, 10,351, f. 38), and in Thomas Gardner's "Account of Dunwich, Blythburgh," etc., 1754. The canopied tomb of debased Gothic does not seem equal to the period of John Hopton, who, if buried here, would more probably have been represented by the low plain tomb, the identity of which had been lost by the robbery of its brass. Both of these tombs have been swept away during modern "restorations."

‡ Nichols' "Collec. Topog. et Geneal.," vol. iv., p. 141, 'Pedigree of Lunsford': and vol. iv., p. 149, Inquisition p.m.

Arms,* mentions as memorials here: (1) a brass (apparently, though not specified) to "John Hopton and Margaret his wife," and, (2) on glass, "in the Church window," to "John Hopton and Margaret and Agnes his wives." The armorial shields, tricked by the herald, shewed Hopton impaling Savile and Barrington, but not Heveningham.

Sir William Hopton, Kt., was forty years of age et amplius, according to his father's inquisition p.m., when he succeeded to the estates; probably he was five or six years more, for if born in 1438 he could scarcely have married Margaret Wentworth in 1451, as said in the Paston Letters. At the date of this mention, 1454, he was riding to London in the company of "his brother, Sir Philip Wentworth," perhaps to make his election of Lancaster or York in the conflict which had commenced. He followed the fortunes of York, and when Edward IV. reigned was Treasurer of the Household.† Later he supported the Usurper, Richard III., was knighted by him at his coronation, 5 July 1483, and was of his Privy Council. But he did not live to fight for his master at Bosworth Field, dying 7 February 1484; his burial place is not mentioned. Although, no doubt, much at Court, he was not disassociated from the County of Suffolk, for he served as Sheriff in 1466-7 and in 1479-80. Living in troublous times, when fortunes and estates rested on the result of a battle, his property had evidently been placed for security in the hands of trustees, perhaps of his stepmother Thomasine, who survived him, for the inquisition p.m. declared that he held no land in Suffolk or Yorkshire, and had only the third part of the manor of Castle Carlton in Lincolnshire, with the market tolls.

Sir George Hopton, Kt. Ban., was twenty-three years of age when he succeeded his father Sir William. He gave his allegiance to the Tudor King Henry VII., and fought for him against the upstart pretender, Lambert Simnel, at the Battle of Stoke, 6 June 1487, when he was knighted on the field. On this occasion he bore the Swillington coat,‡ and is described as "of Swillington"; and though this merits little attention—seeing that in the Suffolk Visitation pedigree he is "of Westwood"—it may be thought that he had lived at Swillington, and at that time had found his Yorkshire wife Thomasine Southill. His life was short, for he had no more than twenty-nine years when he died, 6 July 1490, and that his death occurred in London may be presumed from his burial at that much-favoured place of sepulture, the Church of the Grey Friars.§ He left two infant boys, John and Arthur, of which the elder survived him but six months, dying 20 January 1491. (Inquisition p.m.)

Sir Arthur Hopton, Kt., born in 1489, was but a year and a half old when his brother's death gave him succession to the estates. The first mention found of him is in the State Papers, June 1513, when he served in the war with France, and doubtless was present in the "Battle of Spurs" at Guinegate, 16 August;

* Harvey's note-book, entitled "Collections made in Suffolk," is a small quarto volume now at British Museum (Add. MS. 4969). The Hopton shields at Cockfield Hall, Blythburgh, and Walberswick Churches are tricked, pp. 72-74. It is evident that the earlier generations of this family used the Swillington coat, the Hopton coat proper being quartered.

‡ Argent, a chevron azure, a label of three points ermine. Burke omits the label, but it always appeared in the coat of Swillington of Swillington. See "Herald and Genealogist," vol. iv., p. 234, and vol. v., p. 327. See also Sir George Hopton in Metcalfe's "Book of Knights."

§ Register of Grey Friars, Cotton MSS. ("Vitellius" F. xii., fo. 287): "In capella Sci. Francisci sub muro chori sub lapida jacet Dn. Georgio Hopton miles. Qui obiit A° D^{ni} 1489"; and Nichols' "Collec. Topog. et Geneal.," vol. v., p. 290.

he received his Knighthood 13 October 1513* before returning to England. Next year, October 1514, he is in the Commission of the Peace for Suffolk. In 1516 he is attached to the Royal Household as a Knight of the Body, and during the next twenty years is named at all State ceremonies and Royal receptions, e.g., the meeting of the Kings at the Field of the Cloth of Gold, the reception of the Emperor Charles V. at Gravelines 1520, and again, 1522, in England, the coronation of Queen Anne Boleyn 1533, the christening of Prince Edward in 1537. In the suppression of the Northern Rebellion (the "Pilgrimage of Grace"), 1536, he had sterner employment; and that his career generally was fortunate may be concluded on finding his name in a list of "Persons to be had at this time [1538] in the King's most benign remembrance." The effect of this favourable Memorandum appears to have been the grant by Letters Patent, dated 12 November 1538, of the site of the suppressed Priory of Blythburgh in Suffolk, with the manor, certain lands, and tithes; there was rent to pay, but it may be supposed the terms were advantageous to the grantee.

Sir Arthur at this time is described "of Westwood," the old manor-house of his great-grandfather, and earlier of the Swillingtons. But it is probable that he was then, or possibly a little later, building Cockfield Hall at Yoxford, some five miles from his old residence. The date of the Hall and direct evidence of its builder is wanting, but it could scarcely have had other builder than Sir Arthur, who in the pedigrees (Somerset Visitations) is the first Hopton "of Cockfield," as the tradition of the Yoxford people, noted in the Reyce MS., indicated.

In 1541 or 1542 he sold Swillington and other manors in Yorkshire;† in his time also the lands derived from the old family in other counties were probably alienated, and the proceeds, perhaps, employed in founding the estate in Somersetshire, to which the Hoptons afterwards migrated. Sir Arthur's second son Ralph was, by a grant of 20 November 1544, placed in possession of the site and lands of Witham Priory (near Shepton Mallet and Wells), which became the seat of the family. Of Sir Arthur's career there is only to add that he represented Suffolk in the Parliament of 1541-4. He died at the age of sixty-six 16 August 1555, and, so far as can be determined, was buried in Yoxford Church, where it is highly probable he was represented by the fine altar-tomb in the chancel, which in late years has been ruthlessly destroyed.‡ His first wife was Maud, daughter of Sir Edward Dymoke; she died early s.p. His second wife, mother of three surviving sons and several daughters, was Anne, daughter of Sir David Owen of Cowdry, Sussex, a man of wealth and position, and related to the reigning house of Tudor.

* Sir Arthur Hopton on this occasion bore the proper coat of Hopton (Ermine, two bars sable, each charged with three mullets pierced or), quartered with SWILLINGTON, PERTE, and ROOS—Perte for wife of Thomas Hopton at head of the pedigree; Roos for the heiress of Wissett (near Blythburgh), erroneously represented as wife of John Hopton, but really of Sir John the last Swillington. Previously the Hoptons had borne in first quarter the Swillington coat. ("Excerpta Historica," Bentley, p. 329, and Metcalfe's "Book of Knights," p. 53.)

† "Herald and Genealogist," vol. iv., p. 233.

‡ Davy, the Suffolk antiquary, has fortunately left a nice drawing of the now vanished altar-tomb (British Museum, Add. MSS. 19,176, fo. 203). His opinion (Add. MSS. 19,083, fos. 282[b] and 283) that it represented John Hopton (died 1478) seems based on a wrong reading of Harvey's notes (Add. MS. 4969), or Weever's faulty extract from them ("Ancient Monuments," p. 783). The tomb seems to have been erected to Sir Arthur Hopton by his son Sir Owen later than 1561, about which time Harvey visited Yoxford Church, and taking note of other memorials there made no reference to the tomb, for the reason, it must be supposed, that it did not then exist. Hopton heraldry abounded in Yoxford Church until its shameless destruction in late years. It represented all alliances from Perte to Hall; now Davy's record (Add. MSS. 19,083, fo. 267, etc.) is all that remains.

Reviews.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. V., No. 4, April 1898. Virginia, Richmond, U.S.A.

For genealogy, the present Part gives several accounts, comprising the families of Gookin, Calvert, Markham, Carr, Parkers of England and Virginia, Brockenbrough, and Cocke. There are also some interesting letters of Lafayette given concerning the campaign in Virginia in 1781, shewing what difficulties there were in getting men and accoutrements, besides the disposition of volunteers to disobey orders. In another article, "Journal of John Barnwell," is given graphic accounts of taking the forts in North Carolina, and shewing how his troops fought against every disadvantage. The Part concludes with a General Index for Vol. V.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. VIII., April—June 1898. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

The April Part has for its plate a rather scarce coat of arms of "Buchanan of that Ilk," and gives besides seven coats of the Jersey family of Dobrée, contributed by Miss Edith Carey with a good account of the family. The "Bookplates of Eminent Lawyers" is continued by Mr. F. J. Thairlwall, and those of Sir William Lee, Lord Camden, Blackstone, and Sir Elijah Impey, Chief Justice of Bengal during 1773—1783. The article on the "Sette of Odd Volumes" winds up in "mutual admiration" of its own writer, who unhappily is now taken from us, and hence "The Odd Man Out" is no more, although he leaves his bookplate behind him "designed by its proprietor," and also records that he with other Members "have all the noblest attributes of humanity," which the Japan Society has not, and that he proposed there should be no rule 16; "and this masterpiece of literature was the product of the unaided brains of the writer of these lines. Alone I did it!" Could "mutual admiration" go further? His chatty Paper is continued in May and June Parts, although his genial spirit is wafted far away. In the May Part is given the bookplate of William Hunt, 1715, which with its mantling is a good specimen of an old plate. The Editor continues his "British Trophy Bookplates," illustrated by five examples; and the Bookplates for Identification run up to 301, of which the indefatigable decipherers, Messrs. Brown and Fincham, are successful in elucidating so many. The supposed portraits of both Mr. Brown and Mr. R. le Gallienne do neither of them justice, and as to the latter's "Wifie," her portrait is remarkable for its absence. When will the portraits of the worthy Editor and Mr. Fincham be published, to make the "sette" complete? The June Part has eleven bookplates for identification, besides giving those of John Knox, Messrs. A. T. Hollingsworth, William Manning, and Henry B. Wheatley, the three latter being Members of the "Odd Volumes."

In Memoriam.

REV. J. CAVE-BROWNE, M.A.

It is with the greatest regret we have to announce the death of the Rev. John Cave-Browne, at Detling Vicarage, on the 13th of June. He was born in January, 1818, and was educated at Wadham College, Oxford. In 1851 he became a Chaplain in the Army, serving in India, and being with the Punjab Column in 1857. Returning to England in 1870, he was five years later chosen by Archbishop Tait as Vicar of Detling, and in 1896 Archbishop Benson appointed him Honorary Curator of Lambeth Palace Library.

He was the contributor to our pages of the "Marriage Registers of All Saints, Maidstone, since 1542"; an active writer in the Transactions of the Kent Archæological Society and those of the British Archæological Association, of which he was one of the Council; and the author of many valuable works on parishes and churches in Kent.

A LIST OF FREEMEN of the several Companies of London (being householders within the said City), A.D. 1537, was published in 1828 in Allen's "History of London," 3 vols. octavo, the original list being then in the Chapter House, Westminster. This shews the names of no less than 2,408 Freemen then existing in the thirty-eight Companies there given. It is remarkable that the twelve great Companies do not stand very high in the point of numbers, two of them (the SALTERS with 40, and the VINTNERS with 33) being among the lowest, while the HABERDASHERS with 80, the DRAPERS with 77, the CLOTHWORKERS with 69, are exceeded not only by the Barber Surgeons, Leathersellers, and Tallow-chandlers, but by the Brewers and the Tylers; the GROCERS and IRONMONGERS, each with 59, being exceeded by the Bakers, the Cutlers, the Founders, the Coopers, and the Sadlers; the MERCERS, with 54, being exceeded by the Cordwainers; the GOLDSMITHS, with 52, being equalled by the Joyners and exceeded by the Painter-Stainers, etc. Thus only three out of the twelve stand among the first six companies whose members exceed 90 in the above-mentioned list. These are (1) the Barber Surgeons with 186 members, (2) the SKINNERS with 151, (3) the Leathersellers with 113, (4) the FISHMONGERS with 109, (5) the Tallow-chandlers with 99, and (6) the MERCHANT TAYLORS with 97.

CHANCERY PROCEEDINGS, Ao 1685. VESEY v. READ. REYNARDSON I., 117.

William Vesey of Whatfield, co. Suffolk, gent., & Elizabeth his wife, cousin and heire of Alleyn Reade, late citizen & merchant taylor of London, Alleyn Reade, gent., sonne & heire of the said Alleyn, being alsoe deceased. By settlement about 1650 Wm Read, gent., father of said Alleyn Read the merchant taylor, in consideration of the marriage of his son with one Katherine Cuthbert, did settle upon trustees messuages in Wickford and Raworth, co. Essex, of the yearly value of £150 to the use of said Alleyn Reade, and on his death to the use of such as said Alleyn Reade should appoint by will. The said Katherine the wife died leaving issue Allen Reade, gent., the first sonne, and Richard Reade the second sonne, and no other issue; leaving also said husband, who not only had the said messuages in Wickford & Raworth, but also purchased others in Birchanger & Stansted Montfitchet, co. Essex, and elsewhere in Hertfordshire, the whole of the yearly value of £200 & more, and was possessed of a great stock, leases, houses, etc. In March 1678 he made will & devised lands, etc., to Mr Samuel Reade his brother & Mr Thomas Cuthbert his brother-in-law for ninety-nine years on trust for the maintenance of Alleyn Reade his sonne. Soon after his death Richard the 2d sonne dyed unmarried. Alleyn, as sonne & heir, made probate. Being very young Reade & Cuthbert possessed themselves of the estate. Unjust proceedings. Alleyn Reade the first son dyed a batchellour. Your Orators demanded possession for benefit of your Oratrix Elizabeth Vesey as undoubted cozen & heir of Alleyn Reade the father & Alleyn Reade the sonne. Cuthbert & Read allege many debts & produce long schedules of accounts.

Bookplate of Peter Upcher.

Peter Upcher of Great Yarmouth (son of the Rev. Abbot Upcher, Rector of St. Peter's and St. Gregory's, Sudbury, co. Suffolk, by Mary his wife, daughter and coheir of Rev. John Foxwell, and grandson of Peter Upcher of Sudbury, J.P., by Susan his wife, daughter of Charles Abbot of Sudbury) was born at Bury St. Edmunds, admitted a Burgess of Colchester 30 March 1772. He married Elizabeth, one of the two daughters and coheirs of John Ramey, and by her had a numerous issue.

NOTES TO PEDIGREE OF HOPTON OF SUFFOLK AND SOMERSET.*

Sir Owen Hopton, Kt., born in 1519, was thirty-six years of age when, in 1555, he succeeded as master of the new Hall at Cockfield and the manors of Yoxford, Blythburgh, etc. His knighthood he received from Queen Elizabeth 13 August 1561 at Smallbridge, the seat of Sir William Waldegrave, during one of the Queen's "progresses." In 1564-5 he served as Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk. In October 1567 he had the Queen's command to take the charge of Lady Katharine Grey, the sister of poor "Queen Jane." The unhappy lady, always the object of Elizabeth's jealousy and distrust on account of her nearness to the succession, had then been a State prisoner, for marriage to the Earl of Hertford without the Sovereign's consent, during six years. Of these, the first two had been spent in the Tower of London, thence she was removed to the custody of her uncle Lord John Grey, at Pirgo in Essex, and afterwards committed to the charge successively of Sir William Petre, Sir John Wentworth of Gosfield, Essex, and finally of Sir Owen Hopton. A heavy responsibility was imposed on him by this charge: not only had he—although not at his own cost—to lodge Lady Katharine and her suite of eight or ten persons, but he had vigilantly to guard her in complete isolation from intercourse with anyone beyond the limit of his own household. Moreover, the poor lady was far advanced in decline, induced by mental distress, when she arrived at Cockfield Hall, so that after fourteen suffering weeks—during which Sir Owen had twice to ride to London for the physician—she expired, 27 January 1568. A stately funeral befitting the Queen's cousin followed, necessarily involving much troublesome arrangement, and—as learnt from the accounts preserved—the entertainment of seventy-seven persons attending the obsequies. These onerous duties appear to have been discharged by Sir Owen with such prudence and success as recommended him to the good graces of the Queen; and of his kindness and pity towards his poor prisoner there is sufficient indication in the account which has been preserved of the death scene, and in Sir Owen's letters.†

Between two and three years after this event he was appointed Lieutenant of the Tower of London; the date is wanting, but the "Calendar of State Papers" shews that he succeeded Sir Francis Jobson in the office either towards the end of 1570 or in the beginning of 1571. He held the Lieutenancy until 6 July 1590, that is, for nearly twenty years; there is frequent mention of him in the "State Papers," and his duties at the Tower were performed in conjunction with those as a Member of Parliament. He represented Suffolk, his native county, during the eight weeks' Session of 1571. The next year he was elected for Middlesex, and sat for the Metropolitan county thirteen and a half years, that is until September 1585, proving himself an energetic and useful Member, as D'Ewes' "Journal" in frequent mention of him is witness. In October 1588 he was returned for Arundel in Sussex, and sat until the dissolution of March 1589. He died at the age of seventy-two September 1591, probably at Stepney, as the parish register shews his burial at the Church. Indeed, from mention of him in the parish records,* he appears to have been a parishioner, and may have had a house at Stepney, unless he resided at the manor-house with his son-in-law Henry, Lord Wentworth, married to his daughter Anne Hopton. His wife was Anne, daughter of Sir Edward Echingham of Barsham, Suffolk, the issue being four sons and three daughters.

Sir Ralph Hopton, Kt., Sir Owen's brother, claims special mention as the first Hopton of Somerset, to which county the family was transferred from Suffolk. The "Calendar of State Papers (Domestic)" shews that his career commenced in 1538 as a Gentleman in the Household of the Lord Privy Seal, Thomas Cromwell, then at the summit of his short-lived power and influence. Hopton was in the King's array at the expedition to Boulogne in 1544, and then received his Knighthood. Returned to England, he, in the same year, 20 November, had the grant (or sale, on probably advantageous terms) of the site and certain lands of the suppressed Carthusian Priory of Witham, near Wells, Somersetshire; a second grant of the same property to him and his wife Dorothy was made in the year following; and there was a third grant of same in 1552.† He obtained also in the same manner, in 1546, the manor of Ditcheat (eight miles south-west of Witham), with advowson of the rectory,† which property had belonged to Glastonbury Abbey.

At this time he could scarcely have lived much on his acquired estates, for he held the office of Knight-Marshal in the Royal Household. The date of the appointment is not found, but it may have been a few years previous to 3 February 1551, when, as "Sir Ralph Hopton, Knight-Marshal," he is named as a witness at the examination of Bishop Gardiner.‡ In 1560 he was associated in the same office (which was for life) with his brother Robert,§ an arrangement probably made in order to allow the elder brother's retirement from Court. His duties there appear to have been discharged in conjunction with others in Parliament, for in 1553 he represented Somersetshire, and in 1559 Heytesbury in Wilts. The State Papers of 1570 shew him then occupied with other gentlemen of Somerset in the county musters. He died at Witham 15 December 1571,‖ and though married, without issue. His will is extant, and by it after making various bequests—one of these, the reversion of a lease "in Friarie" (? the Grange), and "a lease and moiety of the parsonage of Ditcheat" to his cousin (i.e., nephew) William Hopton and Dorothy Morgan (these apparently about to wed)—he left the residue of his property to his wife "Lady Dorothy Hopton."¶

This lady, who was daughter of Sir Christopher Willoughby, Kt., of Parham, co. Suffolk, sister of William, first Lord Willoughby of Parham, and cousin of Peregrine, Lord Willoughby of Eresby, survived her husband twenty-six years, and died in 1597. Her will names many of the Hopton family, with legacies apportioned, and her "cousin" (=great-nephew) Robert Hopton is appointed executor and residuary legatee; Lord Willoughby of Eresby is one of the overseers. Lady Dorothy directed her burial to be at Witham, near her husband, and this constitutes the sole evidence of Witham having been the burial-place of the family, as no registers of their time now exist.

Sir Arthur Hopton (II.), K.B., eldest son of Sir Owen, inherited the Suffolk estates, and had probably occupied Cockfield Hall after his father's transference to London as Lieutenant of the Tower. He represented Suffolk in Parliament in the early session of 1589, and is mentioned in D'Ewes' reports. In the State Papers he appears on Commissions of the Peace for Suffolk as late as 1592, yet, as he was Sheriff of Somerset in 1583-4, it would seem that for some years he was connected with both counties. The date and particulars of the Hopton acquisition of the Evercreech Park estate (7½ miles west of Witham) are wanting, but there is little room to doubt that Sir Arthur was the purchaser, and probably circa 1580 when the State Papers first shew his connection with Somerset. About 1597 he sold Cockfield Hall and the Suffolk estates to Alderman Robert Brooke of London, retaining only the Blythburgh Priory property, which descended to his son, but ultimately passed also to Brooke.* Sir Arthur—he was not knighted until the coronation of James I. 1603—is generally represented as "of Witham," and therefore it may be supposed that he resided there. Yet not he but his son Robert seems to have inherited the Priory estate. As, however, the sale of Cockfield Hall and the death of Lady Dorothy Hopton happened in the same year, it is probable that a family arrangement had led Sir Arthur to make Witham his residence; a sufficiently commodious house had, no doubt, been found or built within the precincts of the old Priory. He died 20 November 1607 (Inq. p.m.). His wife, Rachel, daughter of Edmund Hall of Gretford, co. Lincoln, survived him twenty-two years, and appears to have continued at Witham during her widowhood.† They had fifteen children, five sons and ten daughters, all named in the wills.

Robert Hopton, eldest son of Sir Arthur (II.), was married and apparently settled at Evercreech Park at the time his great-aunt, Lady Dorothy of Witham Friary, made him her executor and residuary legatee, perhaps heir; this supposition is built on the register of baptism of his only son Ralph at Evercreech, 13 March 1596. Another child was christened there in 1607, who, in 1609, was buried at Ditcheat, whence it may be thought that Robert had moved to the manor-house at the latter place; and this finds support in an achievement of arms on a wooden tablet or panel placed in the north aisle of Ditcheat Church: it has the initials and date "R. H. 1610." He was then building a handsome house in Renaissance or Jacobean Style at Evercreech Park, 1¼ mile S.W. of Evercreech village, and somewhat nearer Ditcheat. There had been an old house, nearly on the same site, belonging to the Bishops of Bath and Wells, the former landowners; the new house had on its various portions the dates "R. H. 1609, 1613, 1617," shewing the progress of its construction.‡ Ralph, afterwards Lord Hopton, the only son of Robert, married in 1623, and it would seem that the father then left the new house to the young people, for in August of the same year he wrote to Secretary Conway from Witham, and thence there is another letter in 1628. ("Calendar of State Papers.") Robert Hopton was Member for Shaftesbury in the first Parliament of James I., and for Somersetshire in 1621; he served as Sheriff of his county 1618-19. He died in 1638, and, leaving no will, administration was granted September 17 of that year to Sir Ralph his only son.

* Cockfield Hall and the estate were held by Brooke nearly a hundred years, and then passed, by marriage, to the family of Blois, now represented by Sir Ralph B. M. Blois, 9th Baronet.

Sir Arthur Hopton (III.), Kt., who in pedigrees ranks as the fifth son of Sir Arthur (II.), has a place in the "Dictionary of National Biography." He was born in 1587 or 1588, matriculated at Lincoln College, Oxford, 15 March 1605, and graduated B.A. 11 March 1609. In 1629 the State Papers mention him as Secretary to Sir Francis (afterwards Lord) Cottington, Ambassador to Spain, and in due course he himself became the Envoy to the same Court. In 1638, Feb. 2, he received his Knighthood, and his diplomatic services in Spain were such as led King Charles to assign to him in remainder failing issue the peerage conferred in 1613 on his nephew Sir Ralph; the title, however, did not reach him, as he predeceased Lord Hopton. His will shews that after his return to England he was of Willet in Surrey, but his death occurred at the house of his nephew Anthony Hungerford (married to Rachel, daughter of his sister Frances Jones, born Hopton), at Blackbourton in Oxfordshire 6 March 1650, aged 62. He was buried there "in the chancel, under the altar," and is commemorated as "The Hon. Sir Arthur Hopton, Ambassador to the Court of Spain for King Charles I."* The Diarist Evelyn records a visit to him in London in 1649, 7th June, and pronounces him "a most excellent person." By his will he assigned to Sir Nicholas Throckmorton, Kt., brother of his nephew Sir Baynham Throckmorton, Bart. (married to Margaret, daughter of Robert Hopton), manors in Gloucestershire which had been settled on his late brother Sir Thomas Hopton, Kt., and himself for 99 years, and to his sister Lady Margaret Banister his manor of Newcourt, co. Hereford. To his nephew Anthony Hungerford he bequeathed his best Spanish blade, and to his niece Lady Hartop a pair of his best amber gloves and amber pockets. It does not appear that he ever married.

Ralph, Lord Hopton, K.B. The family of Hopton terminated nobly, in a double sense, in the person of Lord Hopton, who may be regarded as the Bayard of Cavaliers, sans peur et sans reproche. His baptism is entered in the parish register of Evercreech 13 March 1596, which year, therefore, may be supposed as that of his birth.† Anthony Wood says that he was a Gentleman-Commoner of Lincoln College, Oxford, and although his name does not occur in the registers as published, the writer in the "Dictionary of National Biography" considers the statement supported by the fact that Hopton presented to the College about 1616 "a double gilt bowl." The excellent article in the great work just cited is complete, and its information very carefully referenced; the present notice, necessarily concise, is based upon it.

Hopton's military training, as in the case of many officers of his time, was obtained in the service of the Elector Palatine during his struggle against the Catholic Powers. In December 1624 he was Lieutenant-Colonel in Sir Charles Rich's regiment raised in England as auxiliary to the forces of Count Mansfeldt. Soon afterwards he was in England and attended the coronation of Charles I., 2 February 1625, when he was made a Knight of the Bath.

But in March 1621, the year after the discomfiture of the Elector, King of Bohemia, at the Battle of Prague, Hopton, being in England, had his first election to Parliament as representative for Shaftesbury. His next seat was for Bath in the first short-lived Parliament of Charles I., 1625, and in 1628 he sat for Wells. After eleven years of the King's rule without a Parliament he was elected in March 1640 for his native county Somerset, and in October of the same year he again became Member for Wells in the Long Parliament. At this time he was of the party opposed to the King's arbitrary exercise of Sovereign power. Thus in April 1641 he spoke and voted for Strafford's attainder, and in December of same year was spokesman of the Committee appointed to present to the King the Remonstrance of Parliament. But he was not prepared to go further, and in the spring of 1642, strongly resisting the action of the majority, he was sent to the Tower for ten days.

† David Lloyd, Lord Hopton's contemporary, though of a generation later, says in his "Memoirs" that Hopton was "born in 1601 in South Wales—[in margin] Monmouthshire—where his mother had relations, and bred in Somersetshire where his father had a seat." The year is wrong (as Hopton was in Parliament in 1621, a proof that he was then of age), and probably the place of birth; for Lloyd's statements have not generally the stamp of accuracy, and here he may have been too eager to claim Hopton as a fellow countryman. Janet Hopton, our hero's mother, may certainly have been with her parents at The Vaindre in Monmouthshire (on the borders of Wales, near Cardiff), and her son, though born there, may have been christened at Evercreech, as registered; also the register may possibly refer to a previous child, but this would be going out of the way for argument.

In August 1642 civil war broke out between King and Parliament, and Hopton drew his sword for the King. At his own cost he raised a troop of horse, and as Lieutenant-General of Cavalry joined the forces led by the Marquis of Hertford in the Western Counties; and when ill-fortune compelled Hertford's retreat into Wales, Hopton with his horse marched into Cornwall. Here he, with three others, received the King's commission to command the Royal forces, and organizing a small body of excellent Cornish infantry they took the field.

In 1643 Hopton defeated the army of the Parliament on three occasions: in January at Braddock Down, near Liskeard; at Stratton 16 May; at Lansdown, near Bath, 5 July. At the latter battle the Royalists though victorious suffered much, and Hopton, shot through the arm and severely injured by an explosion, was carried almost dead to Devizes. There his forces were besieged by Sir William Waller, Hopton from his bed directing the defence, which ultimately was successful owing to relief brought by Lord Wilmot. In reward of his gallant services the King created his General a Peer, 4 September 1643, as Baron Hopton of Stratton in Cornwall, with remainder, failing issue male, to his uncle Sir Arthur, Ambassador to Spain.

Not closely following the course of the contest, the King in 1645 sent the Prince of Wales, then a lad of fifteen years, to the West, there nominally to command, with a council of principal officers to advise him. Hopton, of course, was one of these, and it was intended that he should act as Lieutenant-General of the Army. But he had a rival in Lord Goring, an able officer who had done good service, but an unprincipled, dissolute man. The Prince's council supported Hopton, and Goring refusing to accept their decision, disloyally forsook the King's service and retired to France. This, however, was not the sole instance of the jealous rivalry and selfish motive which prevailed among the Cavalier officers, and with their examples of insubordination little discipline could be expected in the unpaid and ill-provided troops. Clarendon, whose "History of the Rebellion" is our chief source of information, writes of the "dissolute, undisciplined, wicked, beaten army" of which Hopton accepted the command in the spirit of loyal duty that exceptionally actuated him. The task of facing the disciplined, well-led Parliamentary troops had become hopeless, and the final defeat soon came. The battle was near Torrington in North Devon, 16 February 1646, Fairfax commanding the Parliamentarians. The Royal infantry, into whom their General had infused something of his own gallant spirit, behaved well, but the cavalry refused the fight, and rout followed. Hopton was wounded in the face by a pike-thrust, and his horse was killed under him. At Bodmin he attempted to rally his troops and make a stand, but their insubordination compelled him to capitulate to Fairfax at Truro, 14 March 1646. Honourable and lenient terms were conceded by the Parliamentary leader, largely influenced by his appreciation of the noble qualities of his opponent. His tribute to Lord Hopton's worth was at the time thus expressed:—

> You may be assured of such mediation to the Parliament on your behalf as for one whom —for personal worth and many virtues, but especially for your care and moderation towards the country—we honour and esteem above any other of your party. Whose error—supposing you more swayed by principles of honour and conscience than others—we most pity, and whose happiness—as far as consistent with the public welfare—we should more delight in than your least suffering.

Hopton, with other principal Cavaliers, accompanied Prince Charles to Scilly, thence to Jersey and Flanders. For some years he remained as one of the Prince's councillors, but latterly his views diverging from the temporizing policy of Charles and his favourites, he retired to Wesel and thence to Bruges—where his life ended in September 1652, at the age of 56; the nature of his illness and other particulars of his death appear to be unknown. It is said that his body was carried to Sluys, there to await transportation to England; and that eventually, after the Restoration, his remains were laid in the church at Witham.*

Clarendon thus testifies to the excellence of the last of the Hoptons:—

> As faultless a person, as full of courage, industry, integrity, and religion as I ever knew a man. . . . . A man superior to any temptation, and [one who] abhorred enough the licence and levities with which he saw too many corrupted. He had a good understanding, a clear courage, an industry not to be tired, and a generosity that was not to be exhausted, a virtue that none of the rest had.

He adds, that as a commander his decisions were somewhat slowly formed and too liable to alteration, and, renewing his encomium, "He was the soldiers' darling and the soul of that army."

Fairfax's esteem has been expressed; that of Waller was for an old comrade with whom he had learnt the art of war in the Palatinate. He wrote, "My affections to you are so unchangeable that hostility itself cannot violate my friendship to your person."

The high estimation held of Lord Hopton's character by his opponents did not, however, save his property from confiscation in 1653; happily he had not lived to witness it. Though married, as the pedigree shews, he had no child; he had been his father's only surviving son (a second son had died early), but as his grandfather's sons were five in number it is remarkable that male succession should so soon have failed. Lord Hopton had four sisters, and these, as his coheirs, regained part of the property at the Restoration. Catherine, the wife of John Wyndham of Orchard Wyndham, Somerset, had "Witham Friary," which then passed through five generations of Wyndham. Sir William, of the fourth, married Catherine, daughter of Charles Seymour, Duke of Somerset, and this lady, having inherited the noble estate of Petworth in Sussex (which had come to Seymour from Percy), brought it to Wyndham. Under these circumstances Sir William did not care to complete a fine house at Witham, which he had designed to succeed the old Priory house of the Hoptons, whence it was about a mile distant. His son Sir Charles (fourth Baronet), who became Earl of Egremont in 1750, sold the Witham estate to Alderman Beckford of London, and he having his residence at Fonthill, Wilts, the mansion at Witham, never completed, was taken down circa 1790 by William Beckford, the son and heir of the Alderman.

Since 1812 Witham has been the property of the Dukes of Somerset. The Priory buildings, which appear to have served as the residence of the Hoptons, were removed circa 1764, and a farmhouse built on the site. The Church, it is to be regretted, contains no memorial to the gallant Cavalier or to his progenitors believed to rest here, nor is there even a register of their burial.

The house built at Evercreech by Robert Hopton 1609—17 had, writes Collinson, "undergone little or no alteration" in 1791. Sir R. C. Hoare, in 1824, describes it as "a curious Jacobite relic, unfortunately in such bad repair that a few years will probably witness its complete annihilation." The fact seems to be that it had declined to the condition of a farmhouse; and being unsuitable and expensive to repair "annihilation" befell it circa 1840. "Evercreech Park Farm," the property of Lord Portman, now occupies the site, and close by passes the "Somerset and Dorset Joint Railway." (Ordnance Map.)

* Edmund Lodge, in the memoir which in "Portraits of Illustrious Personages" (1828), vol. iii., accompanies that of Lord Hopton, says that his body was brought to Witham; Lloyd does not say so. Lodge's fine engraving is of a picture "by Vandyke, in the collection of the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Egremont." There is also a portrait, painter unknown, in the National Portrait Gallery, and of this there is a coarse engraving (not of the entire picture) in "Memoirs of K. Charles I. and the Royalists . . . . extracted from Lord Clarendon's History of the Rebellion" (1795). Vandyke's picture is evidently the earlier, and represents Lord Hopton in the handsome costume of a Cavalier; whereas the portrait by the unknown painter, in its austerity of mien and dress, is that of a Puritan. The contrast is intelligible if it be considered that Lord Hopton held a medium position between the two parties; to the gallantry and self-sacrificing loyalty of the best of the Cavaliers, he united the discipline and piety of the best of the Puritans.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DEAR MR. EDITOR,

In the June Part of "Miscellanea" I read the following statement:—"The article on the 'Sette of Odd Volumes' winds up in 'mutual admiration' of its own writer, who unhappily is now taken from us, and hence the 'Odd Man Out' is no more." . . . . "His chatty Paper is continued in May and June Parts, although his genial spirit is wafted far away."

As the writer of the articles in question, permit me to assure you that I still inhabit this sphere, and am, notwithstanding my advancing years, in good health.

I regret to have to ask you to insert this paragraph in the next issue of "Miscellanea," as I much dislike to have to contradict any of my confrères of the press; besides it may disappoint some of my relatives and friends to hear that I am still alive. But magna est veritas, et prevalebit.

I am, Sir, your obedient Servant,

July 1898. THE ODD MAN OUT.

 We gladly insert the above, as it was far from the Reviewer's wish to kill our genial correspondent. He would rather have insured his life than taken it so unwittingly, for which he offers "The Odd Man Out" a thousand apologies. The error arose from the Reviewer understanding that "The Odd Man Out" was the late Mr. Silvanus Thompson, who, Mark Tapley-like, was so hopeful for the future, and who will be missed by many.

The Special Number of The Middlesex Hospital Journal. Vol. II., No. 8. London: Mitchell and Hughes, 140 Wardour Street, W.

THIS is a labour of love carried on by the young Medical Staff of the Hospital. Dr. Sidney Coupland gives us "The Story of The Middlesex Hospital," which begins with its foundation in 1755, and gives a full history of all its work for the last 140 years, shewing by a map how the building was nominally in the fields at first, and by several plates what the building was in 1755, 1756, 1800, 1820, and in 1898, also the school buildings attached. There are some excellent plates shewing the old Operating Theatre in 1838 and the new one opened in 1895, the Queen Ward opened in 1808, and the Cambridge Ward instituted in the present year. The Part also has a plate shewing the Members of the Staff in 1865, and one shewing the portrait-medallion of Sir Charles Bell, and a pleasing reminiscence of him by Stephen Paget, Esq., M.A., F.R.C.S. The Number is excellently got up, and worthy a place in every Medical Student's library, and the price of 1s. only is but a tithe of what it is worth as a literary example of earnest work carried on amidst numerous engagements.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. VIII., July—September 1898. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE July Number opens with the Presidential Address, which gives an amusing account of how a schoolboy described bookplates as "awfully decent." There is also a good account of the Annual Meeting and Dinner. The Part has a finely designed plate by Mr. Vinycomb, also two good American plates by Messrs. Sidney L. Smith and E. D. French.

The August Part has a plate of the "Enniskillen School," with a figure of Britannia in front; it is but roughly drawn.

The September Part has for its introduction a bookplate of a firm of Dutch booksellers, we presume, in the Strand during the eighteenth century. It has an inscription inside the oval, but it is too obscure to decipher. The Paper on the "Odd Volumes and their Bookplates" is continued, and is illustrated by that of Mr. Charles Plumptre Johnson's, the Clerke-atte-Lawe of the Sette when elected in 1891, and who held the post of Vice-President in 1895. The plate of Mr. C. H. St. John Hornby is also given, shewing the pressman with the balls inking the forme of type—a mode of working obsolete for the last sixty years. The Part gives its usual list of arms for identification, now numbering 323.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. V., No. 5, July 1898. Virginia, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part contains several quaint wills of the Carter Family from 1726, and others of the Isle of Wight County Wills from 1639. There is also an interesting Journal of John Barnwell, shewing some hard fighting; and under the heading of Genealogy several good families are enumerated. The Part is a very good one.

Maine Historical and Genealogical Recorder. January—August 1898. Portland, Maine, U.S.A.

THE Editor has been kind enough to send us the numbers of this neat quarto from January last, which are mainly taken up with accounts of American families, making them more interesting for New Hampshire and neighbouring States than for English readers. The January Number has a good portrait of Nathan Clifford, who rose to the Chief Judgeship, and died in 1880. The April Number has that of Stephen Longfellow, who finally became a Doctor of Laws, and in 1834 was made President of the Maine Historical Society. The July Number has the portrait of Governor Edward Kavanagh, who began his political career and entered Congress in 1826, being afterwards appointed Chargé d'Affaires to the Court of the Queen of Portugal in 1835. He finally was elected to the Senate of Maine in 1842, and was chosen President in 1843 and died in 1844. In the August Number we have a portrait of the Hon. Neal Dow, who while in the Army was a strenuous supporter of temperance among his officers and men, and only died in October 1897, aged 93. Besides the accounts of the above Maine men of mark, each Number contains a miscellaneous collection of random notes of Early Settlers, incidents of the early settlements of Washington County, list of Marriages and Family Notes, accounts of Families in Maine, Army Returns, etc., and several accounts of the difficulties with the Indians, and their cruelties, which preceded the war with Great Britain, and in several instances shew how the Indians became scouts for their American brethren. We wish the Magazine every success, now it has a monthly instead of a quarterly issue. Copies may be had of the Editor, Mr. S. M. Watson, 12 Monument Square, Portland, Maine, U.S.A., price 1s. each or 10s. per annum.

Fenland Notes and Queries. January—July 1898. Peterborough: G. C. Caster, Market Place.

THIS Publication still carries on numberless questions respecting the Fen country, and explanations of Provincialisms; it also gives the history of the De la Pryme family, Memorials of Leofric, Abbot of Peterborough, the translation of St. Neot's remains to Whittlesea about 1005, and an account of the marriage of a nun in 1516, etc. It is a useful magazine, and worth subscribing to by all the Eastern counties.

LITERARY ANNOUNCEMENT.

WE have great pleasure in announcing that Lady Elizabeth Cust has just finished her "Records of the Cust Family of Pinchbeck, Stamford, and Belton in Lincolnshire." The Second Part is issued to Subscribers with loose Title and Contents and an additional facsimile Plate, for binding the two Parts as one volume.

Pedigree of the Family of Grazebrook

SINCE THEY SETTLED IN STAFFORDSHIRE,

WITH SUFFICIENT PROOFS AFTER EACH GENERATION.*

In selecting proofs from the Evidences a preference has been given to such as are in print, and so can be easily referred to. S.H.C. stands for "Staffordshire Historical Collections" (William Salt Society); Misc. G. et H. indicates Dr. Jackson Howard's "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica."

Many of the others would need a digest of contents, thus greatly lengthening this history; only a few of these have therefore been given, and, if in a Public Depository, the exact references where they may be seen are noted.

The numbers prefixed to each generation shew the descents since their settlement at Shenston only. I am most anxious at some future time to prove and print in these pages the five remaining generations in the Pedigree back to 1065, and I hope and think this can be done, but at that early date evidences must consist largely of charters, the loss of one or two of which might break the chain; there would still, however, be the unbroken descent of their lands.

I. Bartholomew de Gresebroke, a younger son, left the paternal estates in Yorkshire and settled at Shenston, co Stafford.

Acquired from Robert de Grendon about 1204 and before 1214 the old manor house of the De Brays, afterwards called Gresbrok Hall, and an estate in Shenston [S.H.C., xvii. 253, 292]. A new manor house had been built about 1190-5 [S.H.C., xvii. 224, 247, 248, 297]. Shenston had been held by the De Brays since before 1127, and Bartholomew was infeuded subject to the same services to the chief lords, which explains the very unusual tenure disclosed at the trial in January 1297.

Witnesses many charters [S.H.C., xvii. 253, 257, 260, 261], also held lands at Ashfurlong, now in the parish of Sutton-Colefield. [Coram Rege Roll, 26 Henry III., m. 21 dorso (1242)—S.H.C., iv. 94.]

He was dead before 1268 [Fine Roll, 53 Henry III.; S.H.C., iv. 170, xvii. 256], leaving by Edith his wife two sons, Adam and Robert.

Adam de Gresbrok and Edith his mother give half a mark for a writ of Pone, etc. Teste Rege apud Ayleston 18 Sept. 1275.

II. Adam de Gresbroke succeeded his father in his estates, and was in possession in 1268. [S.H.C., iv. 170.]

1268-9. Alesia widow of Philip de Legh sues Adam de Gresebrok. [Placita de diversis comitatibus apud Derby, Roll 150, 53 Henry III., m. 1; S.H.C., iv. 170, xvii. 256.]

Adam de Gresbrok and Edith his mother paid a Fine for a writ of Pone 3 Edw. I., m. 13, dated 18 Sept. 1275. [Misc. G. et H., 1878, p. 14.]

Adam son of Bartholomew de Gresebrok brought a writ of Mort d'ancestor against Ralph de Grendon. [Assize Rolls, Stafford, 4 Edw. I., m. 8 dorso (1276)—S.H.C., vi. 77.]

Adam son of Bartholomew de Gresbrok of Shenston held an Assart in the fee of Robert de Grendon. [Pleas of the Forest, Mich. Term, 55 Henry III., m. 8 (1271)—S.H.C., v. 149.]

Adam son of Bartholomew de Gresbroc had an old Assart in Cannok Forest. [Pleas of the Forest, Hil., 14 Edw. I., m. 15 dorso (1286)—S.H.C., v. 170.]

Coram Rege Roll, Hil., 22 Edw. I., m. 27 dorso (Jan. 1294). The suit of Alesia de Legh still continues, but Adam de Gresebrok was then dead sine prole, and Robert de Gresebrok is his brother and heir. [S.H.C., vii. 10.]

Adam died s.p. before January 1294, and was succeeded in the estates by his brother,

II. Robert de Gresebroke.

Suit of Alesia widow of Philip de Leye, begun in 1268-9, was continued in 1293, and changed to the name of Robert, brother and heir of Adam de Gresebrok. [Coram Rege Roll, Hil., 22 Edw. I., m. 27 dorso—S.H.C., vii. 10.]

In 1294 Robert de Gresebroke again appears in the same suit. [Coram Rege Roll, Easter, 22 Edw. I., m. 44 dorso—S.H.C., vii. 15.]

In January 1297 Robert de Gresbrok summoned Theobald de Neville, when the heriot was declared by which Gresebrok Hall and the estates were held, viz^t, "a horse with saddle and bridle, aketon and lorica, and other arms appurtenant," on the death of each tenant [Banco Roll, Hil., 25 Edw. I., m. 25—S.H.C., vii. 37]. This suit was continued until 1300. In the Preface to Dugdale's "Baronage," vol. ii., this honourable service is discussed. It was the ancient tenure of the De Brays before 1180, and Bartholomew de Gresbroc had their manor house and lands subject to that ancient service to the chief lords.

Robert de Gresebroc, a Juror at the Inq. post mort. of Robert de Somervill. [Esceats, 25 Edw. I., No. 20 (1297).]

Robert de Gresebroc excuses himself from serving on the perambulation of Cannock Forest, date 1307—20. [Miscell. of the Exchcq. Record Office, 1/30.]

Robert de Gresebrok witnessed a charter 15 Edw. II. (1321-2). Gilbert de Honce of Chesterfield to Henry de Teddesleye. [Erdeswick's "Staff.," by Harwood, 2nd ed., p. 421; Misc. G. et H., 1878, p. 14.]

He was succeeded in the estates and Gresbrok Hall by his son,

IV. Robert de Gresbroke, described as Miles in 1345. [S.H.C., xvii. 280.]*

* I think (but have, I believe, no proofs) that they were all or mostly knights. The tenure by which they held their estates, and the legal directions as to juries in these early times, would make it seem more than probable. The History of Knighthood is really very little known—writers have been attracted to the picturesque details, and have rather neglected less attractive historic instances, but still there are many given by authors on the subject. It seems that the possession of a certain income before some fixed date entailed the right, perhaps the necessity, of knighthood. Other facts would seem to restrict it entirely to those who personally went to the wars. Of course in all ages Kings and great Commanders and great Clergy constantly created knights, but in addition to that there are many cases of knights creating other knights, their own sons and others (see Selden's "Titles of Honour," pp. 638, 642, 650). It is manifest that no list of such widespread creations could ever be kept! For what reason I know not, but there are many instances of persons known to have been knights who do not so describe themselves even in their wills! It is stated positively that a knight on his creation, unless he already had paternal bearings, always assumed a coat of arms, and there are many instances which make this more than probable. The same social position which allowed knighthood also justified whosoever would to assume coat armour before 1483-4. In a comparatively few charters of all dates the witnesses are divided into "Dominis" and "militibus"—dominis being lord of a manor, large or small, and miles simply a knight (or soldier knight?)—but in by far the greater number no ranks are given, and many witnesses appear whom we know to have been persons of great consequence, but nevertheless have not such titles attached to their names; and, further, in charters of nearly equal date, sometimes with, but more frequently without any rank named. On the 12 Feb. 1345 we have Hugo de Aston and Robert de Gresbroke called "militibus," while in 1348 these two again appear as witnesses to a set of deeds in which no ranks are expressed.

He had two sons :—

* Two brothers with the same Christian name are of frequent occurrence for 300 years before and perhaps 100 years or more after this date, but I am able to give the following curious proof that there were two brothers John Gresbroke in 1506. The terms "Senior" and "Junior" are only applicable as between father and son, or between two brothers; beyond that nearness of relationship distinction was arrived at by naming the residence or estate :—

A John Gresbroke, "Senior," who had been in possession from (?) 1470, submitted by a concord at one month from Easter 1506 to settle the Shenston estates on himself for life (no wife's interest reserved, therefore he was then a widower), and after to John Gresbroke, "Junior," and to his heirs for ever. Easter Day fell on 12 April 1506, therefore the marriage of John the younger was intended to take place shortly after the 12 May 1506. John the father was of great age, and died before 1509, if we take an average for the date of "Hynse v. Gresbroke" Chancery Suit.

B John Gresbroke, called "Junior" on his marriage after 12 May 1506 (his father being then alive), is described as "Senior" in 1504—15, say 1509, also on 12 Jan. 1519, and again in a list of lands in 1525, and again in the rental of Shenston in 1526-7.

C John Gresbroke, his brother, mentioned as of Middleton in 1523-4.

D John Gresbroke, his son.

Now, since John Gresbroke B is distinguished as "the elder," we know that his father was dead before 1509 (if we take that as the date of Hynse v. Greysbroke), and the issue of his marriage could not then be over 3 years old, or if we take 1515, 9 years old! At the above date, 12 Jan. 1519, any issue of the marriage after 12 May 1506 could not have fully reached the age of 12 years! He could not therefore style himself "Senior" by reason of his infant son, and must have had a brother contemporary with himself and of the same name. In 1525 his issue could not exceed 18, or in 1526 19 years of age!

It would indeed be putting the cart before the horse to style himself "Senior" on account of a son who, when he came of age, would sign himself "Junior"!

There were therefore two brothers, John B and C, as is frequently found at this time, and we can understand how rigidly John B adhered to his title of "Senior." John C lived upon his own estates, and was "of Middleton," co. Warwick, in 1523-4; this is the next parish to Shenston in Staffordshire, and the two houses, Gresebrok Hall and Stoke Hall, were, as the crow flies, not 6 miles apart. John Gresbroke C had no need to style himself anything more than "of Middleton," although his elder brother was obliged to use and continue the title "Senior."

We see by his will that John Gresbroke C of Middleton, 26 May 1540, leaves money to "the makynge of Pool Brygge." This was on the Shenston estate, and a great advantage to it. The Cran Brook flowed under it into the pool which fed Gresbroke's Water Corn Mills, and as their adjoining land was anciently called "Pool Brygge Meadow" it is probable that this was towards rebuilding a more ancient structure.

Will 15 May 1611. To be buried in the church of Shenston. Leaves to Alice Hodgkinson, his daughter, the lands in Shenston purchased from Tho^{s} Greendon. John and Robert Hardinge and W^{m} Sylvester. Proved by Margery, the widow and Ex^{x}, 18 Sept. 1613. Inventory dated 29 June 1611. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 480.]

His widow and Ex^{x} died intestate in 1613, and administration was granted 19 Jan. 1614 to Alice Greisbrooke al's Hodgkinson, the dau. of deceased. The Inventory was dated 31 Dec. 1613. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 481.]

Alice, the only surviving child of the above Robert, and the legatee of his personalty, had been married at Walsall on 31 July 1592 to James Hodgkinson, and they had issue a son John, also named in his grandfather's will. Disputes as to this personalty led to the Chancery Suit, Greisbrooke v. Hodgkinson, in which the Bill of Complaint is dated 13 Feb. 1633.

The entailed estates with Gresbrok Hall passed to Rowland the third son of Robert and brother of the Robert who deceased in June 1611.

XIII. Rowland Gresebrooke, who succeeded to the Shenston estates in 1611 on the death without male issue of his elder brother Robert. In the settlements, previous to his marriage with Sibilla daughter of Raphaell Yardley of Alvecott, co. Warwick, dated 2 Feb. 1598, he is declared to be son and heir apparent of Robert his father, and the estates were entailed in the hands of Raphaell Yardley and Thomas Ffryth, for the behoof of Robert Greisbrooke the elder brother for his life, and after to Rowland and Sibilla and their issue. [Chancery Depositions in Greisbrooke v. Hodgkinson, 1635, temp. Charles I., No. 358, Rec. Off.] It must be remembered that Robert the elder brother was then an aged man, with only one surviving daughter, who had been married in 1592.

Rowland and Sibilla were married at Shenston in April 1598. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 521, Shenston Registers.]

In 1604 Rowland and Sybil sold a small estate, a mess. and 13 acres in Lynne, Shenston, and Lower Stonnall. [Ped. Fin., S.H.C., xviii. 41.]

Paid Subsidies in Shenston in conjunction with Robert 1609 and 1610.

In 5 Chas. I. (1629) Rowland re-entailed the same estates in the marriage settlements of his son Robert with Sarah dau. of Thomas Race of Little Packington. [Chancery Depositions, Greisbrooke v. Hodgkinson.]

Rowland and Sibilla had issue [Shenston Reg., Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 521] Robert Greisbrooke who succeeded, and four daughters : —

1. Grace, bapt. 7 Nov. 1597.

Rowland was alive on the 11 May 1635, but I have not seen his will, and the Shenston Registers have been cut out from 1610 to 1654.

XIV. Robert Greisbrooke, his son, who was of Maxtoke in 1629, and of Little Packington in 1633, inherited Greysbrook Hall and the same estates.

He married at Little Packington, 3 Nov. 1629, Sarah daughter of Thomas Race of Little Packington.

Thomas Cramp's will, dated 20 Sept. 1728, was proved by his widow and Ex'x in London 10 March 1729. He leaves his house and estates in Shenston to Graisbrooke the son of Thomas and Sarah Cramp. Proved at Lichfield 5 Sept. 1728 by Thomas Cramp the sole Executor. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 511.]

He married 1st Mary or Margaret, daughter of . . . . Grosvenor of Codsall, co. Staff., at Wombourne in 1716. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 427.] In his will he leaves an annuity to Sarah "my now wife," and so he must have married a second time, but he died without issue, when Gresbrok Hall and the ancestral estates in Shenston passed away from the male line after an unbroken possession of 519 years.

Greisbrooke Cramp, the heir to his uncle, married a daughter of . . . . Darlaston of Elford, co. Staff.

He sold Gresbrok Hall and the Shenston estates and went to live at Cowerne in Herefordshire. [Sanders' "Hist. of Shenstone," p. 99; Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 427.]

Gresbrok Hall stood on the outskirts of the present village, in a square plot of ground containing 5 a. 2 r. 15 p., bounded by Jacklyn Strete (now called Lynn Lane) on the front, and a public road on one side: on the other side was an occupation lane which followed the margin of the moat. At one end of the moat an extension was shewn turning along Jacklyn Strete, but it had been filled up here and on the other two sides; originally it enclosed more than three acres of land. The Hall stood some way back from the Jacklyn Strete, and all that remained in 1852 was nothing more than a characteristic but very dilapidated half-timber cottage, which could hardly be earlier than the fifteenth century. On clearing it away, however, in that year, some of the original building was exposed, a few steps down into a cellar at the back, in the red sandstone from the quarry in the parish, and with which the ancient church was built. A good-sized triangular space, formed by the meeting of three roads, remains before where the main gateway and bridge over the moat must have stood.

Six cottages have since been built on the edge of the ground near the public roads, but their long gardens behind extend over a part of the original site.

The old cottage was still known until 1852 as "Gresbroke Hall."

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

TRAHERNE.

Can any of your readers give me the following information? What connection is there between a Traherne who received a grant of arms in Henry VII.'s reign and William ap Edmund Traherne who in 1630 married Margaret Williams of Aberpergwm? The arms are common to both the above, and are to be seen in "Miscellanea Genealogica," New Series, Vol. IV., p. 102.

Cwcdarhydyglyn, Cardiff. E. T.

THE SPEED FAMILY.

Mr. Thomas Speed, of Custom House, Louisville, Kentucky, who has sent us an account of his family history, will be very happy to correspond with any member of the above family—a pedigree of which was contributed to this Journal by the late Mr. B. W. Greenfield (Vol. II., Third Series, p. 18)—with a view of ascertaining any connection of the English branch with the American family.

Reviews.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. VIII., October and November 1898. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE October and November Parts keep up a fair average of plates and intelligence, and about the same number of Arms for identification, which now run up to 334. The "Odd Man Out" concludes his laudation of the "Odd Volumes," and Miss Edith Carey has her fifth Paper on "Guernsey Bookplates," illustrated by six Le Marchant bookplates. The frontispieces are those of his Excellency Robert Hunter (Governor of Jamaica 1729—34), printed on a toned ground—a method we often adopt—and a plate of Robertson Lawson, engraved by Mr. Barrett, a model of design and conscientious workmanship.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. VI., No. 2, October 1898. Virginia, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Part has some good examples of wills of Americans in the middle of the last century, shewing a higher degree of education than in many English wills of the same period, and a description of Virginia in 1771 is given. There are letters from General Henry Lee in 1780, giving excellent accounts of the fighting between the British and the American Armies; and the number has some interesting genealogical memoranda of various families in the district.

LITERARY ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Messrs. Mitchell and Hughes have just issued to Subscribers and the Public, Lady Elizabeth Cust's "Records of the Cust Family of Pinchbeck, Stamford, and Belton in Lincolnshire, from 1479 to 1700," in demy 4to, pp. 520, illustrated with arms and facsimiles of letters. The work is a most painstaking history from the beginning, and is amply authenticated throughout by copies of original letters and documents from Record Office and elsewhere, registers of births, marriages, and deaths of the Pury family, pedigrees, wills, and inquisitions. Her Ladyship has spared no expense in the production of this Work, and the Publishers have done all to make it a valuable accessory to any gentleman's library.

* * * * *

Messrs. Longmans and Co. are issuing to Subscribers and the Public "The 'Perverse Widow': being Passages from the Life of Catharina, wife of William Boevey, Esq., of Flaxley Abbey, in the County of Gloucester," compiled by Arthur W. Crawley-Boevey, M.A., Bombay Civil Service, Barrister-at-Law of Lincoln's Inn, etc. This book is an elegant 4to, illustrated with some excellent family portraits, among them being the "Perverse Widow" herself, also those of the deprived Nonjuring Bishops Frampton and Ken, Dr. George Hickes, and the Rev. John Lloyd, by Hogarth. The Work is furnished with many excellent pedigrees (among which will be found that of Isaak Walton) and appendices, and a very full index, besides being a specimen of good and tasteful printing and binding.

* * * * *

Early in January will be issued Mr. Oliver's "History of Antigua," the third volume of which completes the work. The three volumes form an exhaustive history of the place, and with the numerous pedigrees, authenticated by extracts from Registers of births, marriages, and deaths, the labour involved is unparalleled in any local history we have seen. This third volume is illustrated with a coloured geological chart, family portraits, and several views of Antigua, besides having an excellent index.

NOTES.

[1] The marks of cadency (i.e., the mullet charged with a crescent) in the arms recorded in this Visitation (1664—66) to Dr. Hugh Barker, a second son of the third house, conform with this descent. It must, however, be observed that such descent is altogether ignored in the contemporary pedigree of Sir Christopher Barker, Garter, whose heir was (according to his inq. post mortem, 7 June 1550) his cousin Edward Barker, aged 18, a person who does not appear either in the Culworth or Astrop families of Barker. The descent also contradicts that given in the older (1634) Visitation. In this no arms are assigned to the family, but they appear, without any mark of cadency, on the seal pendant to the original will of Robert Barker, dated 8 June 1634, and they are on the monument at New College, Oxford, of his elder brother Hugh Barker, D.C.L., who died 8 July 1632.

[2] The connection with the Astrop family is further confirmed by the remarkable name of Fulk, being common to each. A pedigree of the Barkers of Astrop is in Baker's "Northamptonshire" (vol. i., p. 704), but is not altogether accurate. Robert Barker, of Culworth, and his eldest brother Thomas Barker, of Astrop, are therein made to be sons of "Fulk Barker of Astrop, gent., æt. 20, Esch. [1559] 1 Eliz.," but this Fulk never had any existence, and it was the said Thomas himself who was aged 20 when he succeeded his grandfather Fulk Barker, of Astrop, according to the inq. post mortem, 25 July (1559) 1 Eliz., of the latter.

[3] Kirby's "Winchester Scholars." [4] Will of Hugh Barker, D.C.L., dated 4 January 1627/8. [5] Will of Rev. Anthony Barker, dated 4 August 1644.

[6] It is generally (but erroneously) supposed that he was the "Robert Barker of New Coll.," who in 1646 declined the degree of D.D. ("Fasti," ii., 100.) Not improbably Robert is a mistake for (Robert's brother) William Barker, of New College, who was B.D. in 1637, but did not become D.D. till 1661. Anyhow, the death of Robert, who is a legatee in the original will of his father, 8 June 1634, was before that of his said father (6 July 1636), who in some additions to that will (presumably on 31 May 1636) mentions his death and expunges all relating to him. His name consequently does not occur in the registered copy (146 Lee) of that will in the C.P.C.

[7] Robert Hearst, her eldest son, died 4 July 1660, aged 22, and was buried in Salisbury Cathedral. M.I.

Dame Frances Earle lived latterly with her daughter and son-in-law, and was buried at Sturton, where is a large monument with a statue of her to her memory. Mrs. Trafford was godmother to Arabella Savile, the twin daughter of her first cousin once removed, Mrs. Foljambe of Osberton, 27 January 1785.

* George Gordon, 6th Baron Byron, born 22 Jan. 1788, died at Missolonghi 19 April 1824. The funeral ceremony took place at the Church of St. Nicholas on the 22nd, having been delayed on account of the rains. The coffin was not closed till the 29th of the month. It was suggested by Colonel Stanhope that his remains should be deposited in the Theseum at Athens—a place where other Englishmen had at that time been buried—but his remains were eventually conveyed to Zante, and on the 25th of May despatched to England in the brig "Florida," which had just arrived there with the first instalment of the Loan, and were eventually buried in the Church of Hucknall. On a tablet of white marble in the chancel of this Church is the following inscription :—

Pedigree of the Family of Grazebrook

SINCE THEY SETTLED IN STAFFORDSHIRE,

WITH SUFFICIENT PROOFS AFTER EACH GENERATION.*

X. John Gresbrooke of Stoke Hall in Middleton, co. Warwick, younger brother of John Gresbrooke, senior, of Gresbrok Hall; and both of them sons of John Gresbrooke of Shenston, who appears to have succeeded to those estates and Gresbrok Hall in 1470, and by a Final Concord settled them on John his elder son from 12 May 1506, and on the heirs of the same John for ever. [S.H.C., xi. 255.]

Paid subsidy in Middleton 1523-4 [192/139 Rec. Off.]. Named in the Star Chamber suit in 1552 as father of John the Plaintiff [B'dle 18, No. 211, Rec. Off.].

Will dated 26 May 1540, "to be buried yn the churchyerd of Middleton." Among the bequests, "to the makynge of Pool Brygge xij^{d};" "my feofes to suffer Ysabell my wife to ynjoye the hole of my lands and buyldynges"—naming the rooms in Stoke Hall and the lands which she and Alverey are to enjoy together, etc.—to give her enough timber to make a chemney in her chamber and a dore owte of yt, etc.; "if my wyff do not occupye so much land as I have gyvyn to her, then my sone Alverye shall have yt and no other man." The freehold estates passed to Alverey, subject to certain dower to the widow, and the personalty to her absolutely. Proved at Lichfield 1542 [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 345]. This will mentions "that syde of the Crofte next the ffrthynge lane"—an old cottage now stands about a field away from the junction of Farthing Lane with the main road, very wide spread foundations extend all round it, and it still bears the name of Stoke End. This was the site of Stoke Hall. At the bottom of a field falling away at the back lies a pond, now nearly dried up, but still known by the name of "the great lake."

His wife Isabell was Executrix to the will, and died in 1554.

Her will, which is dated 15 March 1550-1, names her son John, her son Alverey, "desyryng hym to be good to his brethern and syst^{rs}," and appoints for executors her sons John and Henry, by whom the will was proved at Lichfield 26 Jan. 1554-5. The inventory was taken on the 11 Jan. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 345]. Evidently there was discord in the family. Her husband's will does not name a son John, but the Star Chamber proceedings in 1552 arose from her having granted a lease to this John in contradiction of that will. Alverey therefore turned him out with violence.

She paid subsidies in Shenstone 1542-3.

1. John Gresbrooke, eldest son.

Not mentioned in his father's will 1540, nor in his brother Alverey's 1575. Co-executor of his mother's will 1550. Plaintiff in a Star Chamber suit in 1552, John Greysbrooke v. Alverey Greysbrooke [Star Chamber Proceedings, B'dle 18, No. 211, Rec. Off.]. In Jan. 1557 a curious Final Concord was passed at Westminster, Easter, 3 and 4 Phil. and Mary (April 1557), John Foxton Plaintiff, John and Henry Greysbrooke Defts., lands and tenements in Middleton: John and Henry concede to John Foxton and his heirs, which John Foxton regrants the same to John Greysbrooke for the term of one week (!), after which term they are to remain to Henry Greysbrooke and Elizabeth his wife and to their heirs male; and in default of heirs male, then to John Greysbrooke and his heirs for ever. This has some reference to the proceedings in the Star Chamber. John and Henry were executors to their mother's will, and this Fine seems to be some legal quibble; but however that may have been, Henry and Elizabeth had an heir male, who survived till 1623, and neither Henry nor he ever had possession. I do not think the evidences tell what became of John. He paid subsidy in Middleton in 1545-6, probably on the lease, which was contrary to the father's will, and his name disappears out of these records.

2. Alverey or Alured Greysbrooke, who succeeded.

3. Robert, named in his mother's will 1550, also in his brother Alverey's will 1575. His wife's name was Emmes or Emmot. She was buried at Hints, 7 Dec. 1605, as Emmes Gresbrooke, wyddowe. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 543.]

Chancery Suit, Greysbrooke v. Shewell [Chancery Bills temp. Queen Elizabeth, No. xxxv., Rec. Off., date between 1579 and 1587]. Robert Greysbrok of Middleton,

* Communicated by GEO. GRAZEBROOK, Esq., F.S.A.—continued from p. 127.

Robert Greysbrooke the younger, his son, and Hughe Greysbrooke of Hince, co. Stafford, younger son of the said Robert the elder, on the 2nd Feb. 1576 became bound under an obligation of 1000 marks to Henry Shewell of the City of Coventry, and to William Phippes, late of Middleton, for the payment of £320; that they have paid the money, but the said Henry Shewell, to whose custody the bond was delivered, refused to give it up.—N.B. Shewell and Phippes were the supervisors of the will of Alverey Greysbrooke, which was proved 7 March 1576, and probably this £320 was the dowry left to his three daughters, Anne, Prudens, and Marie—£100 each.

Robert paid subsidy on bonis in Middleton 1543-4.

He afterwards resided at Hints, where he was buried 6 Jan. 1588-9 [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 543], leaving by Emmes his wife two surviving sons, viz. (1) Robert, who succeeded to the Middleton estates as heir to his uncle Alverey in the male line, and (2) Hugh Greysbrooke, who succeeded to his father's property in Hints, and married at Hints, 7 Oct. 1576, Margaret, dau. and co-heiress of Lawrence Sagar of Stanley, near Wakefield.

Party to the above Chancery Suit, Greysbrooke v. Shewell (1579—1587).

In 1583 John Freston brought an action against Hugh Greysbrooke for wrongful entry upon lands at Stanley, which was tried at York next year (1584), as a result of which a Star Chamber suit, Morris and Greysbrooke v. Freston, was entered concerning the lands of Lawrance Sagar, in which Freston was accused of suborning witnesses and forging a lease, dated 1565, from Lawrance Sagar to him the said Freston. The documents and after proceedings are very lengthy, and are among Star Chamber Proceedings at the Record Office.

Paid subsidy in Hintz 1596 and 1609.

Bought an estate at Hints from Edw. Bassett and Jane his wife, and Walter Bassett and Sconsolata his wife, in 1602. [S.H.C., xvi. 219.]

Churchwarden of Hints in 1606, in conjunction with Edward Shewill. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 543.]

Hugh and Margaret were buried at St. Martin's, Birmingham—he on the 26 Nov. 1617, she on 28 Dec. following—and left one only surviving daughter, Elizabeth Greysbrooke, baptized at Hints 19 May 1586, called (in Glover's "Derbyshire," Jacob's "Peerage," etc.) "daughter and heiress of Hugh Grasbrooke of Hintz." She married at St. Martin's, Birmingham, 17 Nov. 1603, Edward Fox of Birmingham. She died in Feb. 1628, and he in Jan. 1640 (the inventory to his will was made 2 Feb. 1640), and they left with other issue: (1) Joseph Fox, who married the Hon. Thomasine Blayney, dau. of the 2nd Lord Blayney, whose descendants were the Lords Bingley, the family of Lane Fox, and the present Lord Conyers; (2) Thomas Fox, M.P., of the Moat House, Tamworth, purchased by him in 1663; and (3) Rev. Timothy Fox, Rector of Drayton Basset, co. Stafford, ancestor of the Foxes of Osmaston, co. Derby.

4. Henry Gresebrooke, the fourth son of John and Isabell, is named in his father's will in 1540, and was one of the executors to his mother's will in 1550; proved 26 Jan. 1554. Some records of him have already been given under John, his eldest brother. He was of Birmingham, and was buried in St. Martin's 28 April 1557; he died intestate, administration being granted to Elizabeth his widow on 12 March 1557-8 [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 347]. Their issue were two sons and two daughters:—(1) Richard Greisbrooke of Meriden, co. Warwick, who died s.p. By his will, dated 5 June 1621, proved in London 6 Nov. 1623, he devised all his house and estate "to John Haddon, grandchild to my brother Nicholas Greisbrooke, deceased," and for want of such heir he bequeaths "all the aforesaid premises unto Michael Greisbrooke, sonne of my cozen John Greisbrooke of Middleton, co. Warwick, gent., and to the heires of Michael." Wm. Blythe of Coleshill executor, or if he die before John be 21, then John Greisbrooke of Wigginshill. Overseers, William Blythe, John Greisbrooke of Middleton, and Symon Blythe of Hawkeswell [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 363]. Richard paid subsidies in Meriden 1596, 1609, and 1620. (2) Nicholas, bapt. at St. Martin's, Birmingham, 13 Jan. 1555-6, and was dead in 1621, the grandfather of John Haddon, who was son of Margaret, the daughter of Nicholas by .... Haddon. Margaret is named in Dorothy Flavell's will 25 Dec. 1619. Dorothy, the elder daughter, married Richard Flavell of Meriden; her will, dated 25 Dec. 1619, was proved at Lichfield 20 Jan. 1620. Winifred, the second daughter, was bapt. at St. Martin's, Birmingham, with her brother Nicholas, on 13 Jan. 1555-6. [Misc. G. et. H., 1877, p. 542.]

5. Hugh Gresbrooke, named in the wills of his father 1540, of his mother in 1550, and of his brother Alverey in 1575.

John and Isabell also left two daughters: Margaret, married .... Shurrocke (Isabell's will 1550, and Alverey's 1575), and Elizabeth, married .... Hylley (Isabell's will 1550).

At his mother's death in 1554,

X. Alverey Greysbrooke, the second son of John and Isabell, inherited the whole of the Middleton estates and Stoke Hall.

Named in his father's will, dated 1540, and in his mother's 1550.

Paid subsidies in Middleton 1542, 1543, 1545, 1546, and 1571. Star Chamber suit 1552, John Greysbrooke v. Alverey Greysbrooke [Proceedings temp. Henry VIII., B'dle 18, No. 211, Rec. Off.].

Greysbrooke v. Foxe, 1561-2. The will of Thomas Kene of Sutton in Colefylde, co. Warwick, appoints "Alverey Greysbrooke, my sonne in law," "my true and lawfull executor." Thomas Kene died at Sutton Coldfield 27 Dec. 1559. [Plowden's Reports, folio, 1578, p. 275.]

His arms, Argent, three coneys feeding gules, were allowed for the ancient coat of Gresbroke, as a quartering to Roper in the Visitation of co. Derby in 1634, also in 1662.

He married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Keene of Sutton Coldfield, co. Warwick. She is named in the will and inventory of Isabell Gresbrooke 1550 [Misc. G. et. H., 1877, p. 345], and was sole Executrix to her husband's will in 1576.

Margaret's mother was (? Margaret) the eldest daughter of Wm. Gibbons of Little Sutton and Agnes his wife (who died in 1520), the younger daughter of Wm. Harman of Moor Hall, and the sister of John Harman alias Vesey, Bishop of Exeter from 1519 to 1554.

A Chancery Suit in 1597 shews that Humfrey Keene of Sutton Coldfield, Gent., sold to Simon Perrot in 1590 the site of the Manor of Sutton. He was dead in 1597, and Thomas Keen his brother was Executor to his will. Of course that was one generation later than Margaret's father, who was Warden of Sutton in 1531 and 1548.

1. Margarett, who married before Sept. 1575 Henry Sewall or Shewell, Mayor of Coventry in 1578 and 1606, one of the supervisors of Alverey's will. Henry Shewell's will is dated 1 Sept. 1624, and he died 6 April 1628 at the age of 84, therefore was born in 1544. Margaret's will is dated 7 May 1628, and was proved 23 Nov. 1629, and both lie buried in the Drapers' Chapel in St. Michael's, Coventry. Among other issue they left a youngest son, Richard Sewall of Corley, Gent., who married Mary, the only sister to Sir Wm. Dugdale, Garter King-at-

Arms. She was baptized at Shustock 7 Dec. 1597. Richard and Mary had nine children. The will of one of these nine, namely, Richard Shewell of Nuneaton, was proved in 1648 by his uncle and Executor, Wm. Dugdale.

2. Anne Greysbrooke married, after 1575, as his second wife, Thomas Roper of Heanor, co. Derby, and the Visitation of that County in 1634 allowed to Roper, Argent, three coneys feeding gules, for their Gresbroke quartering; also again at the Visitation of the same County in 1662. She was the mother of Samuel Roper of Heanor, Barrister-at-Law, the early patron of Sir Wm. Dugdale, and "Cousyn German" of Richard Shewell or Sewall, who had married Mary, the sister of Sir Wm. Dugdale. Thomas Roper was still alive in 1598.

3. Prudence, } both unmarried in 1575, and I do not think the evidences shew
4. Mary, } to whom they were married.

On the death of Alverey or Aluredus as it is written in Latin (i.e., Alfred), Stoke Hall and the estates at Middleton, etc., passed to his nephew,

XII. Robert Greysbrooke, the son of Robert, third son of John and Isabell (X).

Party with his father to the Chancery Suit, Greysbrooke v. Shewell, as Robert Greysbrooke the younger (1579 to 1587).

In the Chancery Suit, Greysbrooke v. Lisle and Greysbrooke, 7 May 1640: it is declared that Robert Greysbrooke by his deed, dated 1 March 1583, covenanted to levy a Fine in behoof of himself for life, and after to the use of Elizabeth his wife, and then to John Greysbrooke their son and heir, the father of Complainant. [Chancery Bills and Answers, B'dle G G 59, No. 46, Rec. Off.]

Paid subsidy in Middleton 1593-4. [193/236, Rec. Off.]

His will was proved by John his son and sole Executor 22 Oct. 1595, but cannot now be found at Lichfield. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 350.]

Robert married Elizabeth . . . . his then wife in 1583.

On 20 Jan. 1599 Elizabeth demised her jointure lands for thirty years, if she should so long live. [Greysbrooke v. Lisle and Greysbrooke, Chancery Bills and Answers, 1640, B'dle G G 59, No. 46, Rec. Off.]

On the death of Robert he was succeeded by his son and sole heir,

XIII. John Greisbrooke or Greysbrooke of Stoke Hall in Middleton, Gent., who proved his father's will in 1595.

Barnaby Ensor of Wilnecot, co. Warwick, in his will, proved at Lichfield 1598, appoints Wm. Colemore of Birmingham Executor, and refers to "my cosen John Gresbrooke which I lent him £3."

John Greasbrooke witnesses a Bond 5 Dec. 1611: Richard Mewe of Minworth to Edward Smythe of Wigginshyll.

John Greasbrooke witnesses a Bond 29 Sept. 1616: Edward and Isabell Smythe to Ralph and Hugh Higginbottom of Erdington.

Will of Henry Porter of Edgbaston, 12 Feb. 1618, mentions Anne his wife, his brother-in-law William Colemore, and his brother-in-law John Greasbrooke.

Richard Greisbrooke of Meriden in his will, 5 June 1621, names "my cosen John Greisbrooke of Middleton," and leaves his estates in certain eventualities to Michaell his son. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 363.]

Chancery Proceedings, Hinton v. Hawkesford and John Graisebrooke, 13 Feb. 1621, shew that this John Graisbrooke was a gambler! [B'dle H 29, No. 58, Chancery Proc. temp. James I., Rec. Off.]

The Chancery Suit moved by Robert the son of this John, 7 May 1640, Greysbrooke v. Lisle and Greysbrooke, declares that this John Greysbrooke, by Deed 20 Aug. 1602, settled lands in Middleton, Whishaw, and Moxhull to the use of himself for life, and after to Mary his wife for her life, if said John should die s.p.; but if there should be issue, then a portion to Mary for her life, and the estates to his eldest son or second son, and so on in tail male. This was the settlement before his marriage. Further he is said to have granted a lease of lands by Deed 20 July 1603, also to have sold lands in 1605, and again about 1612. [Chancery B. and A. temp. Chas. I., B'dle G G 59, No. 46, Rec. Off., but said Sales were impossible!]

In the Chancery Suit Grasbrooke v. Grasbroke in 1671, promoted by Michael his younger son, but then the male heir, it was shewn that this John, by a Deed dated 18 Oct. 1632, surrendered to his son Robert and his heirs for ever the mansion and all these estates, and confirmed it by a fine; and that in Hilary Term following (Jan. 1633) he suffered a Recovery, thus barring all remainders and vesting the fee simple in the said Robert and his heirs. [Chancery Proc., Mitford ii., part 87, No. clxxvii., and part 143, No. ccxxxiii., Rec. Off.]

He paid subsidies in Middleton 1596, 1597, 1609, 1620, 1623, 1624, 1625, 1627-9.

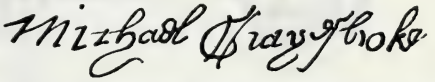
His arms, Argent, three coneys feeding gules, occur in the Visitation of co. Warwick in 1563, with additions by Mundy (in 1619). [Harl. MS. 1563.]

He died intestate in 1636, but administration of the personalty was granted 2 Dec. in that year to Michael Greasbrooke his second son. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 366.]

John Greysbrooke married shortly after, 20 Aug. 1602, Mary daughter of William Colemore of New Hall in Birmingham by Anne his wife, daughter of Wm. Fynney of Cannock, co. Stafford. [Visitation of co. Warwick (Harleian Soc.).] Mary was baptized at St. Martin's, Birmingham, 17 July 1580.

In the Chancery Suit Hinton v. Hawkesford in 1621 she is named "Marye his wife."

On 2 Dec. 1636 she signed this declaration at the Court of Probate, Lichfield: "Mem. that I, Mary Graisbrooke, the wiffe of John Graisbrooke, late of Middleton, in the Countie of Warwick, deceased, doe reffuse to take anie administration, being lefte by my husbande neither goodes nor chattels, ffor he died possest off none of these, but left undisposed off at his death the some of Eighteene Poundes, which is yett remaininge." Michael Grayesbrooke, her second son, signed the Bond accompanying this and administered to the personalty.



The estates, as shewn by the Chancery Suit 7 May 1640, had been handed over to Robert (father and son having combined to break the entail), and the widow was left without her settled jointure; and it is evident from the above that she, as well as her sons Michael and Hosea (who were then residing at Oldswinford, co. Worcester), had been kept in ignorance of the tenour of that Deed of 18 Oct. 1632 until her husband's death!

On the 14 July 1640 she proved the will of her son John Greysbrooke of Middleton. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 368.]

The surviving issue of John and Mary Greysbrooke were five sons, two having died in infancy, viz.:—

1. Robert, who succeeded to Stoke Hall and all the Middleton, Moxhull, and Whishaw estates.

2. Michael, the second son, who succeeded him as the male representative of the family.

3. John Greysbrooke, who died s.p. at Middleton. His will, dated 15 June 1640, was proved by his mother on the 14th of the following month at Lichfield. He names the three daughters of his brother Robert, also his brother George. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 368.]

4. George, who was alive in June 1640.

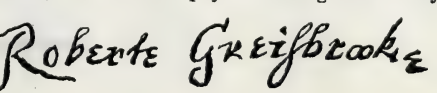
5. Hosea.

In his brother Robert's will, dated 1 Sept. 1668, he directs: "It is my will that Hosea, iff hee stay with me, that he should have given him forty shillings." This will was proved 15 Sept. 1671, and Hosea had been buried at Oldswinford on the 12 July 1671. It is evident that Robert was enraged at Michael for leaving him and wished to retain Hosea's services.

On his father's death in 1636,

XIV. Robert Greysbrooke, the eldest son, succeeded to the mansion and estates of which he had really been in possession since 18 Oct. 1632, before which date he was of Little Packington and apparently for some time after.

Bond dated London, 6 July 1633, to William Fetherston of Clifford Inn. Robert Greisbrooke of Little Packington, co. Warwick, undertakes to pay 20 shillings on 10 July 1633.



Robert Greysbrooke and his three daughters named in the will of his brother John 15 June 1640. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 368.]

In the Chancery Suit Greysbrooke v. John Lisley of Moxhull and John Greysbrooke this Robert describes himself as third but eldest surviving son of John and Mary Greysbrooke of Middleton. The date was 7 May 1640, and the object to enforce the delivery of Deeds to enable Robert to recover from Lisley and Greysbrooke lands in Middleton, Wishawe, and Moxhull. In the pleadings John the father and Robert the grandfather of this Robert are named. [Chancery B. and A. temp. Chas. I., B'dle G G 59, No. 46, Rec. Off.]

Mr. Robert Greasbrooke paid subsidy in 1663.

Robert Greisbrooke of Middleton, Gent., gave "twenty shillings" to the "Free Present" to Charles II. in 1663. [259/7, Rec. Off.]

Robert Graysbrooke, Gent., paid hearth tax in 1666, also in 1667.

Will of Robert Greysbrooke of Middleton, Gent., dated 1 Sept. 1668, mentions his three daughters and his brother Hosea, appoints as Executors his wife and Elizabeth his daughter. "In case there should be any difference I would desire my cozen Hill and my cozen ffoxe, if alive, to get this will performed, each one a paier of gloves of 5 shillings apiece." Proved at Lichfield 15 Sept. 1671 by Debora Greysbrooke the widow and Elizabeth the daughter. The inventory was made on the previous day. The seal is still attached to this will, the three coneys on a shield very well cut, and without any mantling, crest, or decoration. [Misc. G. et. H., 1877, p. 393.]

Robert Greysbrooke.

Robert Greysbrooke married Deborah .... Executrix to her husband's will, which was proved at Lichfield 15 Sept. 1671.

The Defendant in the Chancery Suit Grasbrooke v. Grasbrooke in 1671, to which she signed her name as "Deborah Greaysbrooke." The particulars are noted under Michael, her husband's next brother.

Debora Greaysbroke

"Widdow Grasebrooke, Ex^{x} of Robert," paid hearth tax in Middleton in 1672. [194/325, Rec. Off.]

She was buried at Middleton 5 Nov. 1686 as "M^{rs} Deborah Graisbrooke." [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 543.]

The only surviving issue of their marriage were three daughters, namely:—

1. Deborah, "the eldest of my three daughters which my son Chauntrey did marry" (her father's will), born before 5 June 1640 (John her uncle's will); married before 1668 the Rev. Richard Chantrey of Hartshorne, co. Derby. Richard Chantrey was buried at Hartshorne 20 July 1694, and by his will, dated 30 June 1694, left his wife Deborah sole Executrix and Legatee. The Inventory was made 4 Sept. 1694 (books worth £3), but they had no issue.

2. Elizabeth, born before 5 June 1640; alive and unmarried in 1671, when she acted as co-executrix to her father's will. I think this Elizabeth married (? Samuel) West, and had a son Greisbrooke West of Middleton, who was under age in 1688, and was buried at Middleton in 1749 [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 542]. His mother's name was "Elizabeth," and she died in 1716. Greisbrooke West's wife Mary was buried at Middleton 3 Feb. 1705, and their children were baptized there.

3. Phœbe Greysbrooke, born before 5 June 1640, unmarried in 1668, and still alive in 1671.

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

ANDREWS.

Information is desired as respects the parentage of "William Andrewes of Hampsworth, carpenter," who embarked at Southampton for New England, about 6 April 1635, on the "James" of London. (Letter in State Paper Office: Papers relating to Trade and Plantations, vol. xi., folio 69. Copied 9 September 1842.) He may have been of Hamptworth, Downton, Wilts, and was undoubtedly for many years a resident of New Haven, Conn. At the date of emigration he must have had a wife and at least three children, William, Samuel, and Jane. He had another son, Nathan, born in New England, and probably two other daughters. The Parish Registers of Downton, Idmiston, Winterbourne Gunner, and Winterbourne Dauntsey in Wiltshire, and those of Minstead, Bramshaw, and Beaulieu in Hampshire have been examined without results.

Reviews.

The History of the Island of Antigua from 1635 to the present time. Vol. III., crown folio, pp. 505, with Geological Chart, Portrait, Views, etc. By VERE LANGFORD OLIVER, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P. London: Mitchell and Hughes, 140 Wardour Street, W.

WITH this third volume Mr. Oliver completes his voluminous history of the Island of Antigua, West Indies. The first idea of issuing but one volume was soon dispelled, for such have been his energy and painstaking labours that the matter he had for years been collecting grew so completely into one great whole that the difficulty undoubtedly has been what could be left out. Beginning in alphabetical order, the pedigrees of the landed proprietors and gentry given, comprise many of the best English families, and include in the registers of each of the islands all those connected with the neighbourhood or otherwise; the consequence has been that officers marrying or dying in the various districts are all given, although their stay or visit might have only been of short duration. Then in the wills printed it can be seen at once to what an extent the negros formed the basis of the wealth of the owner, and the bequests left to many of them by their former masters are evidence of the esteem held by owner and slave to each other.

The Work being in a handsome folio, the pedigrees have been arranged very clearly to go across both opening pages, thus avoiding the alternative of carrying a descent several lines lower, and we may mention that they begin with A and end at Y, with additions in the third volume to many already printed in the first and second. Labour has not been spared in the immense task of collecting material, or in the printing, which is in excellent taste throughout, Each volume is illustrated, and the whole three form a history ample enough to have been written even of a nation. We see with pleasure the pages of our Journal are often quoted with other standard works of reference, and various literary coteries, such as the Harleian Society, and all that vast store of information to be found in the "Gentleman's Magazine." The world is indeed indebted to the indefatigable Author for a noble testimony to a place his family has been connected with for years, and a faithful history of it is placed within the reach of all libraries, and will hold its own by comparison with any similar work published within the last fifty years.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. IX., January to March 1899. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THESE three Parts still carry on this work with the old vigour, as fresh in the ninth volume as in the first, and new members without stint, as if the Society were anxious to "let them all come." We shall miss Mr. Walter Hamilton, whose loss in the prime of life we never could have contemplated, and whose manner always was so cheerful as to mark him to be with us for years to come. His Paper, "Beauty versus Utility," is the last we shall have from his facile pen. The plate of De Lafontaine is a tastily-drawn modern plate, with a superfluity of mantling which is scarcely required to enhance its careful design. The Parker Bookplate and those of All Souls' College, Oxford, are good examples of older work, though rougher in detail than is found in others of a similar date; that of John William Robinson Parker excepted, which is nicely poised as a seal with eighteen quarterings, and is a good example of the work of forty years ago. The March Number has a portrait of Mr. W. Hamilton, and should be preserved as the frontispiece of Vol. IX. when bound. If the Editor would insert a "note to the binder" at the tail of one of the pages that it was intended for such, it would generally be adopted. The plates for identification now number 355.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. VI., No. 3, January 1899. Virginia, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Quarterly still keeps on its useful task of publishing old Virginian documents, and among others are several accounts by eye-witnesses of the burning of William and Mary College on 29 Oct. 1705. In another article on abduction of young girls, there is appended a statement of how the son of Lord Athorne in 1728 was abducted by his uncle Richard, and sold to a planter named Drummond. The lad returned to Ireland and laid claim to his title and estates, but not having means to pursue the action, failed. The Number is interesting in having the Proceedings of the Virginia Historical Society for 1898 given.

NOTES TO BARKER OF GREAT HORWOOD AND NEWBURY.

[1] The arms of Barker occur again at the lower end of the hall at New College, quartered (2 and 3) with those of Sandys (viz., Or, a fess dancettée between three cross-crosslets fitchée, gules), being those of "Edwin Sandys, Esq., B.C.L., Fellow," the same quarterly coat again occurring on the south side of the hall. (Ex inform. Col. J. L. Chester.)

[2] This has been rendered into English—no very easy matter—by an able scholar (G. W. Watson) as under: "Here is interred HUGH BARKER, renowned for his study, knowledge, profession, and title of Doctor of Roman Law: who applied many years to the investigation, interpretation, and enunciation of the law, with such success that his fellow consultants ever found in him foresight, his clients honour, and his opponents fairness: in whom the Church felt it had a champion to defend its property and rites; the clergy one to assert their dignity; and the people one who knew not false witness: whom the Chancellorship of the diocese of Oxford, wielded with such noble qualities, caused to be appointed Dean of the Venerable Court of Arches, London, and President of the very famous College of Advocates of the same city. To whom, buried, according to his wish, among these sacred relics (with which he was connected, being formerly on the foundation of Wykeham and Founder's Kin), amid the tears of all good men, his very affectionate wife, MARY, erected, A.D. 1632, this monument, which thou, oh reader, dost behold." The translator remarks of the words "quod insimularet non invenit," that they are "rather vague."

[3] The inscriptions at Great Horwood were copied and the arms thereon described by Col. J. L. Chester about 1870.

[4] The inscriptions at Salisbury were copied in 1898 by Clifford Wyndham Holgate, Secretary to the Bishop of Salisbury, who adds that "the stone over William Hearst has scaled much, and several words are entirely gone, but from an early copy of the inscription I supply them."

[5] It is evident that the arms here (incorrectly) marshalled are those of the two Hugh Barkers and their (four) wives. The first Hugh married firstly Mary Jones, and secondly Joanna Goddard. The second Hugh married firstly Elizabeth Whitehead, and secondly Esther Heysham, for whose arms there is a space left blank.

[6] Her burial as "Mary Baker" took place 3 Jan. 1642-3 at Newbury.

[7] Sic, but in register 1686.

[8] There is a good pedigree of Busby of Addington and Marsh Gibbon, Bucks, in Croke's "Croke Family," vol. i., p. 688.

[9] She was in reality the widow of Thomas Wyld, who was her second husband, and the relict of Hugh Barker, her first one.

[10] The names, however, of the parents, to whom her conduct was thus "exemplary," have not been ascertained.

[11] The Rev. George Wyld, 48 years Rector of Chieveley (died 1 Jan. 1837, aged 74), was brother of the half blood, ex parte maternâ, of the deceased, being second son of Thomas Wyld (died 26 May 1789) by Diana (formerly wife of Hugh Barker), and next brother and heir to Thomas Wyld, who died 15 Sep. 1789, both above-mentioned.

9. Anne, born and died 1629.
10. Margaret,* married circa 1671 Joseph Tenison of Norwich, second son of Dr. Philip Tenison, Archdeacon of Norfolk; died at Norwich and buried at St. Stephen's there 6 June 1693, leaving issue (see TENISON Pedigree, "Mis. Gen. et Her.," Vol. II., Third Series, p. 145).

IV. GREGORY MILEHAM, born 1622; died 1658; married Elizabeth, daughter of .... Locke (she buried 25 September 1665 at Burlingham), and had issue:—

Pedigree of the Family of Grazebrook

SINCE THEY SETTLED IN STAFFORDSHIRE,

WITH SUFFICIENT PROOFS AFTER EACH GENERATION.*

XIV. Michael Grayesbroke—so he spelt his name on 2 Dec. 1636 to the Bond in the Court of Probate at Lichfield, when he administered to his father's personal estate. The lands were entailed on the male heir, and thus passed to Robert his elder brother. [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 366.]

The will of Richard Greisbrooke of Meriden in 1621 describes him as "Michael Greisbrooke, sonne of my cozen John Greisbrooke of Middleton, co. Warwick, Gent." [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 363.]

He settled at Oldswinford, co. Worcester, about 1640. His eldest child, registered there, was baptized 21 May 1643.

On the death of his elder brother Robert in 1671 without male issue, he ("Michaell Grasbrooke of Middleton, Gent.") instituted a Suit in Chancery, Grasbrooke v. Grasbrooke, 3 Dec. 1671, to recover the landed estates his grandfather and others—his ancestors being seised of a great inheritance in Middleton—settled upon John Grasbrooke and his heirs male, by which the same come to your Orator as heir male of his late father, but the relict and Executrix of Robert refuses to deliver up the possession, etc. In her reply on 19 Jan. 1672 Deborah admits that John Greasbrooke, otherwise Greysbrooke, had issue Robert the eldest son, her late husband, and that the Complainant was the second son, and that Robert her husband left issue only three daughters. But that in Oct. 1632 the said John Greysbrooke and Mary his wife did surrender and grant to Robert Grasbrooke, the Defendant's late husband, and to his heirs and assigns for ever all the said estates. And for confirmation thereof did, in Hilary Term following, levy unto the said Robert a fine with proclamation, etc. In pursuance of which the said Robert on 3 Feb. 1633, by Deed enrolled in Chancery, did convey the same to William Fryth that a Common Recovery might be made, which was accordingly done in Hilary Term 1633, and so the absolute fee simple was vested in the said Robert. She explains that this was done to enable Robert to pay his father's debts. She signed "Deborah Greaysbroke." [Chancery Proceedings, Mitford ii., part 87, No. 177; part 143, No. 233; the Fine, co. Warwick, Hil., 8 Chas. I. (Jan. 1633), parcel No. 28; the Enrolled Deed, Close Rolls, 8 Chas. I., m. 18, Greasbrooke et ffryth; Chancery C 2940, part 29—all in Rec. Off.]

Michael Grasbrooke married first Dorothy .... by whom he had issue (all baptized at Oldswinford):—

1. Joan, bapt. 21 May 1643.

2. John Grasebrooke, 22 Feb. 1645-6. He married Bridget, who was buried at Oldswinford 14 March 1701-2. He married secondly, at Chaddesley Corbett, 20 May 1704, Elizabeth, sister of Wm. Hunt of Chaddesley and widow of Samuel Holland or Hallen. He is described in the marriage allegation as a widdower, aged about 56, and Elizabeth Holland as a widow of about 45. She was buried at Oldswinford 13 July 1727, and her will, dated 28 June 1727, was proved at Worcester 31 July following [Misc. G. et H., 1877, p. 406]. John was buried at Oldswinford 3 May 1706, and left issue surviving by his two wives three granddaughters only: Anne 1696, Dorothy 1699, and Sarah bapt. 1701.

3. Robert, 1 July 1648.

4. William, born in 1650 (at which date a note in the Oldswinford Registers explains that they were very irregularly kept). He was buried at Oldswinford 6 Sept. 1686, and had one posthumous son, "William son of William," bapt.

* Communicated by GEO. GRAZEBROOK, Esq., F.S.A.—continued from p. 163.

29 Jan. 1686-7, which second William married at Oldswinford, 24 March 1705-6, Catherine daughter of . . . . Cartwright of Oldswinford, and was buried there 30 Jan. 1710-11, leaving by her an only daughter, Elizabeth, bapt. 9 Oct. 1708, who was married also at Oldswinford on 26 Dec. 1731 to George Scott. XV. Joseph Grasebrooke or Grazebrook, bapt. at Oldswinford 29 March 1652. He married Elizabeth, daughter and coheir of . . . . and Ann Millward. The will of Ann Millward, dated 4 Dec. 1692 and proved at Worcester 1 Jan. 1692-3, mentions Joseph and Elizabeth and all their children then living. By his wife Elizabeth Joseph had issue (all baptized at Oldswinford) :—

1. Joseph, alive in 1692.

2. Samuel, bapt. 11 May 1679; buried at Oldswinford 20 Aug. 1743.

3. Benjamin, bapt. 14 Jan. 1680-1, who married at Stow-in-the-Wold, co. Gloucester, 21 July 1709, Anne Guthridge alias Meekes. He settled in Gloucestershire, and his monument in Bisley Church declares he died 1758, aged 81 (thus making his age four years too much), also his wife Anne, who died 4 April 1765, aged 70. From this marriage descend the Grazebrookes of Dudbridge and Stroud, co. Gloucester, and Farbridge, co. Oxford, but I have not got their Pedigree.

XVI. Michael Grazebrooke of the Heath in Oldswinford, bapt. 11 Feb. 1687-8; married at Oldswinford, 12 May 1718, Elizabeth, daughter of William Hunt of Brier Hills in Chaddesley Corbett by Anne his wife née Hancox. The marriage allegation at Worcester describes Michael as a batchelor, about 29, and Elizabeth a maiden of about 26.

* "Meriall Grazebrooke's receipt for Stewed Carp" is still preserved. The Madeira wine and other ingredients would make any fish good.

About 1720 the family began to use seals shewing the Arms: "Argent, an eagle displayed gules, armed or, on a chief sable three bezants, each charged with a fleur-de-lys azure." The earliest one has a very foreign character; the eagle has a bare neck and a fringe round it, like a vulture, and stands upon a scroll with the motto "Bear and Forbear"—within the shield—a custom, I believe, peculiar to Spanish Heraldry. The Gloucestershire branch used similar seals, slavishly copied from impressions of previous ones, and so they have continued to the present day, with or without quarterings. I supposed these arms had come from some marriage, or perhaps from the accidental possession of a stray seal, but after diligent search I can discover no family either in England, Germany, the Low Countries, or France with such a bearing. In Edmondson's "Heraldry" they are given as belonging to the Grazebrooks before 1770. The proper Arms, as passed by the Heralds, are Argent, three coneys gules, now used as the second quarter. [See Misc. G. et H., 1878, Vol. II., New Series, p. 16.]

4. Elizabeth, born 23 Oct. 1725 and buried at Oldswinford 13 July 1727.
5. Susannah, born 24 Jan. 1730-1; alive in 1766.

Reviews.

The Book of Dene, Deane, Adeane: a Genealogical History from Norman Times of the Families originating in Northamptonshire and in the Forest of Dene. Compiled by JOHN BATHURST DEANE, M.A., F.S.A., with additions by MARY DEANE. London: Elliot Stock, Paternoster Row.

THIS Work is due to years of research by Mr. Deane, and is now issued by Miss Mary Deane, who has materially added to its literary merit. It begins with Roberto de Dena, that is, cupbearer to the King, whose father is mentioned in Domesday as holding fourteen parishes in Kent and Surrey. Of eighteen families of Deane the history brings us to Cheshire, where the family of Thomas de Park was situated, and then to America, where Mr. W. Ward Dean is located, and who for years has been connected with the Harleian Society. The Book has several pedigrees and tracings of arms, and is nicely printed by Mr. Stock on antique paper, bound in white vellum, and is well worthy of a place among family histories.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. VI., No. 4, April 1899. Richmond, Virginia, U.S.A.

THIS Quarterly still keeps up its usual historical reminiscences. There is a good pedigree of the Throckmortons of Huntingdonshire from 1577, traceable from the De Grey and Fitzhugh families to those of Throckmorton of Virginia and Kentucky two hundred and fifty years later. The Parker family of Northampton in 1654 is traced to the Parkers of Eyre Hall, Northampton County, Virginia, and the last marriage is that of Miss Mary Eyre to Mr. W. H. de Courcey Wright, son of Judge D. Geraud Wright, in 1898. There are also accounts of the Parker family of Virginia in 1650, the Withers family of Kentucky from 1690, and the Payne family. The Part also contains the Title and Index, and this makes it more valuable to its readers.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. IX., April to June 1899. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE frontispiece to the April No. is a very effective portrait of M. Zola, engraved by M. Henry André, of Paris, for M. Volaire. Four good plates are for identification, and there is also given the bookplate of Bloomfield, with the Motto, "Friends in need and a fig for the Heralds." The plates of Mr. James Murray and the Canterbury Free Library are both excellent examples of modern work.

The May Part has for frontispiece the assumed arms of Mr. William Channing, with farmyard accompaniments of poultry, sheaves of corn, fruit, and a Cupid husbandman with scythe and a jug of home-brewed, all to the life a wealthy farmer's coat of arms. This is a change from the old Irish bookplates, which as a rule were made up of books. Excellent examples of German work are the bookplates of Count Leiningen-Westerburg, shewing his two castles, one dating back as far as 1230 and the other built in 1898. Another plate engraved by Major Bengough Ricketts is more heraldic than the German one, and has the shields and helmets nicely grouped, with a book of Shakespeare shewn in front of the setting sun. His four examples of bookplates printed in chocolate have been designed since he published his "Composite Bookplates."

The June Part has an excellent frontispiece in the plate of Mr. C. Wilbraham Perryman's, and there are four others, all engraved by Miss C. Helard, of Castletown; although very similar in detail, each one is as delicately drawn as possible, and the mantling well arranged. There is an article on festoon plates, giving six fair examples. Bookplates for identification now run up to 371. All three Parts keep up the character of the Journal.

VARIOUS FORMS OF SPELLING THE NAME OF GRAZEBROOK SINCE 1200.*

With the Dates and the Documents in which they occur.

In the following List I have only given persons who are noted in the Pedigree printed at pp. 117, 158, and 212. Younger sons drifted away, and in course of years their descendants may have contracted other and strange variations, but unless their connection is clearly given such are excluded.

Parish Registers are late, and of little authority in our present enquiry. We sometimes find them beautifully written by the clergyman, and then no doubt they represent the pronunciation of a cultivated gentleman; but their clerks would speak, pronounce, and write just as any other common villager, and so their entries are worth nothing as proofs of spelling.

Where any particular form lacks further confirmation from some reliable source it may perhaps be mentioned, but is not numbered.

Without giving too many instances I have tried to shew the range in date of each form, its frequency,† and the kind of document where it occurs—my object being dialect—how the name was pronounced, as reflected by spellings at different dates.

I think the subject will be found curious and interesting. We have the sounds of an English name as it was spoken at different dates, expressed in spelling according to the hearing of each scribe, and we must remember what Hickes in his "Thesaurus," quoting John de Trevisa (who translated Higden's "Polychronicon"), says of the various dialects and modes of pronouncing English in different districts: "Hit semeth a grete wonder that Englyssmen have so grete dyversyte in theyr owin langage in sowne [sound] and in spekyn of it which is all in one ilonde;" and he then goes on to mention Yorkshire, quoting W. de Pont, lib. 3: "All the language of the Northumbers and specialliche at York is so scharp, slitting and frotynge [fremitus, a great noise or blast like a trumpet] and unschape, that we Southerne men may that langage unnethe understonde." ["Thesaurus," vol. i., pref., pp. 17, 18; also vol. i., p. 55.]

Notes on some of the Spellings.

The initial letters G and C are fairly interchangeable phonetically, but it seems a strangely rare mistake in these evidences—and if C why not K ? I did not find one single instance of K within our narrow limits of date, but the search was hardly an exhaustive one.

It will be noticed that the second syllable "broc" or "broke" is found in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries spelled bruck, brucke, or broocke, shewing a very broad pronunciation.

Gosebrok, 1276, is a curious error. There is a place of that name in Byshbury, near Wolverhampton ; perhaps the scribe knew that place, and so introduced that spelling into this suit, which refers to the Gresbroke lands. This being a simple error in writing is not numbered ($20\frac{1}{2}$).

Spelling the first syllable "Grea" instead of "Gres" also shews a broad pronunciation, but the general tendency from the first seems to have been towards pronouncing "Gra." Here is a case in point: In country manors Sunday was the most usual day for executing early deeds, because the presence of a sufficient number of important witnesses could always be counted upon at church. On the Sunday, therefore, after the Feast of St. Hilary (13 January), 49 Edward III. (1375), Johannes de Gresebrok (No. 2) was present with his charter and his scribe, having sold an estate in Shenston to Robert atte Wythye of Stonhale, and the parchment was duly completed in the presence of five substantial witnesses. But one Thomas Lady owned eighteenpence yearly rent-charge arising from the same lands, and this also Robert atte Wythye had purchased, and so Thomas Lady too was waiting with his scribe and his unfinished charter, which was then completed before five witnesses. Lady had witnessed de Gresebrok's deed, and John de Gresebrok was first witness to this second document. In this case, however, Lady's scribe phonetically wrote him down as "Joh'es Grasbrok" (No. 52). The handwriting and ink of the two deeds are quite different. Now I think we may account for this particular variation by the confusion of languages which then prevailed. In Wilkin's "Concilia," vol. ii., p. 333, it is mentioned that at this date public speakers were sometimes obliged to repeat their discourse three times to the same audience, viz., in Latin, French, and English. Norman-French "Gres" would be pronounced "Gra," and here is a quotation in point. We know that William the Conqueror sought to exterminate the Saxon tongue, and ordered that French alone should be taught in all schools ("Ingulph," p. 71); but John de Trevisa, writing in the fourteenth century, says that John Cornwaile, a Master of Grammar, "changed the lore in scoles, and Richard Pencriche followed him, so that now (1385, just ten years after our date) all the children have now left learning French" (Hickes' "Thesaurus," vol. i., pref., pp. 17, 18). It may be well to remind my readers that the ancestors of the Lords Greystocke were in these early times always written "Grestocke" until about this date. In an Exchequer Deposition taken 17 August 1602 I met with this curious proof of the pronunciation of "ey" and "ei" then prevailing: "Mother unto this deponent kept the seied lease," etc., and "seyethe that she did see the seyed lease about xl yeres since."

Both before 1375 and also in later times there can be no doubt that the Grazebrook name was pronounced "Gree." In Domesday Book the place-name occurs as "Greseburg," "Gersebroc," and "Gresseburg." I do not think I have anything to shew how the Normans treated these old Saxon names, but the pronunciation of the first syllable, which in later times was phonetically expressed by "Grey," "Grai," "Gra," and "Graye," again reverted to the sound of "Gree." I find a family settlement was drawn on 23 June 1671, in which the father signed "Robert Greisbrooke, Senior" (No. 35), and his son "Robert Griesbrooke, Junior" (No. 41). Now, although it can hardly be doubted, after the above deposition, how "Grei" would be sounded at that time, I suppose "Grie" must have conveyed the sound "Gree," and so the father would be Grasebrooke and the son Greesbrooke. Robert the younger adhered to this spelling—he so signed his own marriage allegation on 4 July 1672, and when, 35 years after, he came to join his son in another similar settlement in 1707, he continued to sign "Robert Griesbrooke" (No. 41). He then appears as "Senior," and his son signs "Robert Greisbrooke, Junior" (No. 35), a spelling which the son continued to use throughout his life.

"Greshbrooke" (No. 12½), not numbered, being only from a Parish Register entry of a burial, resembles the speaking of a drunken man.

The name "Grisbrooke" is common in Surrey and Sussex in all ranks of life. I think I know who must have been their first ancestor, but no further descent is given. This occurs once only (No. 42) in the List. I think we may here detect the dialect of "Southerne men" mentioned by Hickes, a mincing way of expression very unlike the blast of a trumpet. Of course "gris," Norman-French, is Englished "grey": "Pour ses vestemens noirs et gris" ("Roman de la Rose," l. 233).

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

SHEPLEY AND SPENCER FAMILIES.

In the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," Vol. IV., Second Series, p. 322, I stated that Elizabeth Spencer was probably the daughter of Robert Spencer of Leeds. I have discovered since that she was the daughter of Thomas Spencer of Rotherham, principally through the information contained in the following Memorial registered at the Wakefield Deeds Registry :—

Memorial of Indentures, dated 6 and 7 October 1737. The lease made between Thomas Spencer of Wakefield, Plumber and Glazier, son and heir of Thomas Spencer, late of Rotherham, Fellmonger, deceased, by Elizabeth his wife, who was the daughter of William Champion of Ulley in the said county, Yeoman, deceased, and who afterwards married William Downes, late of Rotherham, fellmonger, now also deceased, of the one part, and John Smith of Wakefield aforesaid, Esq., of the other part. Three messuages situate at Rotherham, with several chambers and woolshops occupied by Thomas Scholey, Benjamin Spencer, and John Ducken. One acre of land in Saintinwell field called Lees Gapp occupied by Henry Wilkinson. All the reversion on the death of Elizabeth Downes in an undivided third part of a messuage in Ulley, wherein the said William Champion did dwell, and lands, etc., formerly occupied by Nicholas Champion, father of the said William, and which was purchased of one William Allerton by the said William Champion.

The following pedigree shews the family connections, and clears up one or two points in the "Familiæ Minorum Gentium" (Harleian Society) on which Hunter was doubtful :—

Elizabeth, daughter of William Champion of Ulley, Yeoman, married first Thomas Spencer of Rotherham, and by him had the following children, baptized at Rotherham :—1. Dorothy

Spencer, baptized 22 April 1690; 2. Thomas Spencer, baptized 8 July 1691; 3. Elizabeth Spencer, baptized 26 November 1692, married Marmaduke Shepley; 4. Ann Spencer, baptized 14 January 1694-5, married Daniel Maude of Wakefield. (See pages 621 and 696.)

Elizabeth Spencer married secondly William Downes of Rotherham, fellmonger and woolstapler, and according to Hunter's "Familiæ Minorum Gentium," pp. 1217 and 1218, had issue:—1. William Downes; 2. Sarah Downes, married Richard Kent of Kimberworth, Gentleman; 3. Martha Downes, married John Kent of Kimberworth, Gentleman. John Kent was baptized at Rotherham 28 October 1691, and was the son of William Kent.

A pedigree of the Shepley family has appeared in the "Northern Genealogist," 1896, p. 199.

ANGIER.

I should be much obliged if any of your readers could inform me of the Christian name and any other particulars of — Angier, who married first, 2 June 1692, Anne, daughter of John Jocelyne of Feering Hill, Kelvedon, co. Essex (who died June 1705), by Martha his wife (who died 10 March 1724), and by her (who died 25 Oct. 1705) had issue:—1. John, born 2 April 1693; died 30 Oct. 1695. 2. Thomas, of the city of Norwich, worsted weaver, born 10 April 1695; married 13 Oct. 1724 Phillippa Eastgate, and died 18 Feb. 1758-9, when he was at the French Jesuits' Academy at Rheims in Champagne, leaving issue. 3. Samuel, born 9 March 1698. — Angier married secondly, 3 Feb. 1707, Katherine Jonny (? Jenny, Jarmy, Jermy), and by her (who died 28 July 1712) had issue:—4. John, born 17 Dec. 1707. 5. Bartholomew, born 1 Aug. 1709. 6. James, born 5 March 1711. — Angier married thirdly, 13 June 1713, Elizabeth Saller (? Sadler, Salter), and by her had issue:—7. George, born 14 July 1715. 8. Bartholomew, died 21 May 1717. 1. Elizabeth, born 11 Sep. 1714. 2. Thomasin, born 18 Sep. 1718. All of this information has been derived from a family Bible, and, in the main, has been confirmed.

It will be observed that — Angier was living in 1718, the date of the birth of his youngest child. He is believed to have been the son of Henry Albert Angier, Marquis de Lohéac and Seigneur de Crapado, by Louise du Châtelier his wife (whom he married in 1671). This Marquis de Lohéac was known to have been a Protestant and to have been living at Nantes, France, in 1671, but was not heard of there after 1685, the date of the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes. He is believed to have settled in England, probably in Essex, as his son (?) married into the well-known Essex family of Jocelyne. Unfortunately there is a gap in the Registers of the Church at Feering (where his first marriage probably took place) from 1650 to 1713, which covers the year in which he was married, 1692.

I have been unable to obtain any enlightenment from wills, parish registers, etc. I should be very glad of any information that would help me to ascertain the Christian name of — Angier and his parentage.

Reviews.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. IX., July to September 1899. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

The July Part has as frontispiece the die struck on the launch of the SS. "Oceanic," which is shewn as in a photograph, and with the figures of Europa and Columbia supporting a wreath, with the White Star between them. The plate is drawn by Mr. Sambourne, whose good taste and masterly posing are exemplified in this as in many "Punch" pictures. The Part gives a good account of the General Meeting as well as of the Dinner.

The August Part has the book-plate of Lord Battersea, drawn so ably by Mr. Sherborn with all the grace of modern skill, and shewing the palate and brushes of Art at the left-hand corner, and Music typified on the right hand; and a very gracefully-drawn mermaid as one of the supporters, and a sea-horse as the other. This part might happily be called the "Sherborn," for there is an excellent paper on "this modern Little Master," as M. Leiningen-Westerburg calls him, giving a full account of his general work. Of course his experience as a designer of art jewellery abroad, working as he did in Paris, Switzerland, Florence, and Rome, gave him plenty of scope as to style, and it is quite the exception that a young hand having this experience had not aspired to be an artist and a Royal Academician. Mr. Westerburg's article is couched in admiration of all Mr. Sherborn has done, and is a pleasing critique on the work of an engraver second to none in book-plates. Both these Parts contain the usual number of other plates, several of the Parkers being shewn.

The September Part has for its introduction the book-plate of Mr. William Bruce Bannerman of Croydon, and there are two others, designed by Mr. Graham Johnston and Mr. Fred. A. Sly, and worthy of being shewn. There are also several other good plates given, one to Mr. Asher Feldman, and another to S. Hollyer of Guttenburg, who enlivens it with a representation of a bottle of Mumm by the side of his dog, who is enjoying a pipe. The book-plates for identification now reach 387.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. VII., No. 1, July 1899. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

THIS Quarterly Part is interesting, especially for Virginians, for the first article gives reminiscences about 1776, while the fifth article gives the basis of the new Government in 1624, when James I. and Sir Thomas Smythe were so disliked; but by their lucky deaths Charles I. instituted much more liberal tactics, and recognized the House of Burgesses. There are also given extracts from the Register of Farnham Parish, Richmond, Virginia, from 1668 to 1782, but it is very dilapidated, and consists merely of loose pages without any order. The genealogical article embraces particulars of eight families, and with the Notes and Queries complete a very interesting Part.

WE have received an appeal for subscriptions to renovate the ancient Armorial Ceiling to St. Martin's Church, Fenny Stratford, Bucks. It was built in 1726, and the original subscribers seem to have placed their arms on the ceiling, which contains seventy-four coats, the freshness of all having passed away, and many are nearly obliterated. The novelty of an armorial ceiling decaying ought to bring subscribers from our various archæological societies to the rescue, and we trust it will.

THE YORKSHIRE PARISH REGISTER SOCIETY.

Although only formed in the spring of this year, the above Society has now about 250 Members, being the largest membership of any society of the kind.

The Registers of St. Michael-le-Belfrey, York, Burton Fleming, Winestead, Linton-in-Craven, and Horbury are in the Press. The Registers of Bingley, Bolton-by-Bolland, Stokesley, Whitby, and Methley are in hand, and other Registers on the Society's list are:—Arncliffe, Blacktoft, Bolton Percy, Crofton, Emley, Gargrave, Hackness, Kettlewell, Kirkby-in-Cleveland, Kirkthorpe, Lastingham, Mirfield, Otley, Scarborough, Settrington, Sowerby near Thirsk, Thornhill, Thornton, Wistow, and Wakefield. As only 286 copies will be available for Members early application for Membership is advisable.

The Pedigree from which this is copied was compiled for Charles Cokayne, afterwards Viscount Cullen, at some date between 1631 and 1642, namely, after September 1631, when his son Brien, therein mentioned (who was afterwards the second Viscount), was born, and before August 1642, the date of his creation as a Peer. It is mounted on wood, being 8 feet 5 inches in height (including the crest at the top) by 4 feet 7 inches in width. It remained for about 200 years at Rushton Hall, co. Northampton, till the sale of that estate in 1828, when it was removed to Thorpe Malsor Hall, in that county, where it now [1899] is, being the property of the Rev. Cecil Henry Maunsell, whose grandmother, the Hon. Caroline Eliza Maunsell, was one of the coheirs of the Cokayne family. These coheirs, on the death, 11 August 1810, of Borlase, sixth and last Viscount Cullen, were ten sisters, of whom four died unmarried in 1814, 1824, 1825, and 1828 respectively. The survivors were: (1) The Hon. Matilda Sophia Austen, of Hadwell Lodge, Aghada, co. Cork, widow (relict of the Rev. Robert Austen, LL.D., some time Rector of Midleton, co. Cork), who died 23 February 1869, aged 90, leaving four daughters and coheirs. (2) The Hon. Mary Anne Adams, of Eastley End, Thorpe, co. Surrey, widow (relict of William Adams, LL.D., sometime an Advocate in Doctors' Commons, London), who died 16 June 1873, aged 91, leaving eight children, one of whom, her youngest son, George Edward Cokayne, formerly Adams, is the contributor of this article. (3) The Hon. Georgiana Maunsell (wife of John Edmond Maunsell, Royal Horse Artillery), who died 19 December 1864, aged 80, without issue. (4) The Hon. Caroline Eliza Maunsell above named (wife of Thomas Philip Maunsell, of Thorpe Malsor Hall, co. Northampton, M.P. for North Northamptonshire 1835—57), who died 12 March 1860, aged 72, leaving issue. (5) Frances Annabella Assheton (wife of William Assheton, of Downham Hall, co. Lancaster), who died 25 July 1835, aged 40, leaving issue. (6) The Hon. Elizabeth Charlotte Pery, of Bury House, Cottingham, co. Northampton, widow (relict of the Hon. Edmond Sexten Pery, youngest son of Edmond Henry, first Earl of Limerick), who died 21 April 1883, aged 84, leaving issue.

Notices of the Family of Furneaux,

FROM THE ELEVENTH TO THE FIFTEENTH CENTURY.‖

General Note.—The name is found in two of the most trusted transcripts of Battle Abbey Roll—in that of Holinshed as "Furnieuus," in that of Leland as "Fourneux." Among versions of less value, Brompton's "Chronicle" gives "Forneus;" John Foxe, "R. de Ferneuaulx;" the Dives Roll, "Eude de Fourneaux." The name is thought to be taken from Fourneaux, near Coutances. That the name is rightly inserted in these lists would also appear from its early occurrence in various counties. It is found in "Domesday Survey" in Somerset (see below, Note 1), and in the North and East of England, also in Devon in or before the time of Henry I. In the many documents cited, the spelling of the name varies greatly. We have "Furn (or Forn) -eus, -eux, -eaux;" also "Furn (or Forn) -el, -ell, -ellis, -es, -eis, -eys," etc. Such variations are constantly found in different documents, where the same person is evidently meant, and even in different parts of the same document. Similar variations occur in the spelling of the local name Furness in Lancashire.

NOTES.

Note 1. The name, apparently misprinted (or perhaps mis-written) as "odo defornelt," is given in Exo'n Domesday, p. 73, as that of a tenant in chief of half a hide of land in Somerset, "i' hund' sutperetonae." It should probably be written "de Fornell'," a common abbreviation of "de Fornellis."

Note 2. A connected account of this Henry and his descendants is given in Collinson's "History of Somerset," iii., p. 213, fol. In right of his wife he became Lord of the Manor of Ashington (near Yeovil), and with it of Brimpton d'Everey (p. 214), also of Kilve (on the coast near Watchet), for which estates he paid a fine in 1214 (Pipe Roll, 15 John). From "Testa de Nevill," p. 194, fo. 837, it appears that his wife's two sisters were wives of Nicholas Avenel, and of James son of Gerard, and that the three husbands held also in chief, by service of one knight's fee, Childeton and Sepewass Manors in Devon, given by the Conqueror to ancestors of their wives. Reichel (Pipe Rolls of Henry II. relating to Devon, p. 50) identifies Childeton with Chilla and Sepewass with Sheepwash, near Black Torrington, and notes that the service came to be divided ("Testa," p. 179[a]) between Nicolas and William Avenel, the latter of whom died seised of both manors in 1250 (Inq. p.m., i., p. 59), and was succeeded in them by Matthew Furneaux (Note 4).

In the list of Sheriffs given in the thirty-first annual volume of the Deputy-

Keeper of Records (1870), Henry de Furnellis is Vice-Sheriff of Devon and Cornwall for Richard Reuel in 6, 8, 9 Richard I., 1195-7-8. The lists given by Devon historians (Pole, Risdon, Izaacke) agree nearly in date, but make him Sheriff in his own right, and of Devon only. Izaacke gives his arms as: Argent, a bend between six martlets gules (apparently confused with Furnival).

A claim of land against him by Galf. Talebot is recorded in Rot. de Fin., 1 John (1199). The date of his death is shewn by a mandate (Rot. Claus. Hardy, 1832) 17 John (1216) to the Sheriff of Somerset to give seisin of lands occupied by him in "Kerue" and "Hecumb'" to Nic^{s} Avenel. One of the same name occurs at the same date in Wilts, Salop, and Herts, but is probably not the same.

Note 3. Collinson states (iii., p. 213) that Henry was succeeded by a son and grandson, both called Matthew; but the pedigree of Furneux in "Visitation of Somerset, 1531 and 1573" (edited by F. W. Weaver, 1885, p. 108), substitutes for the first Matthew a second Henry. That there was more than one Matthew seems shewn by documents containing the name, and spreading over some sixty-five years, but as the whole space from the death of Henry to that of the second Matthew (just a century) is rather long for two lives, and as no Matthew is mentioned before 1251, it is probable that the Visitation pedigree is right in inserting a second Henry, though we seem to have no other record of him.

Note 4. This Matthew would evidently be the one stated in an Inquisition of 35 Henry III., 1251, to be next heir of William de Avenel (possessed of manors of Chillat, Sheepwashe, Morlegh, Menascate, Studeley, etc.), and as then of full age (Harl. 6126, fo. 5); also whose arms are given (Risdon, "Note-Book," p. 3) in 1252 as "Semy of crosses-crosslet, a bend." In other notices it is not easy to distinguish between him and his son; but he may probably be the one of whom one moiety of five marcates of land is held in "Shipwaisse" in 1275, and a manor of Snydderleigh (half a knight's fee) in 1292 (Harl. 6126, fos. 12, 30), and whose name occurs in 1273 (Rot. Hund., ii., 136), and in an agreement with Simon de Montacute in 1290 (Rolls of Parliament, i., 55^{a}). A sheriff of Devon of the name is given by Pole and Risdon in 4 Edward I., 1276, but not by Izaacke or in the Record Office list.

Note 5. Collinson states that this Matthew was Lord of Ashington and Kilve in 1294, and then became a knight. He and others draw their information respecting the parentage of his wife and the issue of the marriage from a paper by Robert Aske, a servant of the Earl of Northumberland, written in the time of Henry VIII. This paper is printed in full in the "Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica," published by J. B. Nichols (vol. i., 1834, pp. 243—248). Collinson states that he obtained licence for a fair at Pury (afterwards called Pury Furneaux), near Bridgwater. In 1301 he recovers damages against obstruction of it (Abbrev. Placitorum, p. 243). Also he held a moiety of the manor of Messhawe (near Southmolton, Devon), by half a knight's fee, in succession to Avenel (Harl. 6126, fo. 55; Pole, "Devon," p. 438), and presented to the Church (Bp. Stapeldon's Register, 1307—1326, ed. Hingeston Randolph, p. 160). He is summoned to military service against the Welsh in 1295, and against the Scots in 1296-7-8, 1300 (Parl. Writs, i., 265, 276, 292, 312, 336). After having been Sheriff of Dorset and Somerset for two consecutive half-years, 32-33 Edward I., 1304-5 (Record Office), he became Sheriff of Devon for four years in succession, 5—8 Edward II., 1312—15 (so Rec. Office; Pole, Risdon, and Izaacke give nearly the same dates). In the latter part of the last year he ceased to be Sheriff, apparently having to answer a complaint of the Commonalty of Devon against him and his Under-Sheriff, for which their lands, etc., were attached (Rolls of Parliament, i., 289^{b}). This, however, did not prevent his being again Sheriff of Dorset and Somerset in 9 Edward II., 1316, the year of his death. He is also frequently appointed a Justice in Oyer and Terminer to try offences in Somerset, Dorset, Devon, and Cornwall (Cal. of Patent Rolls, 1298, 1308—10-11-12); is Conservator of the Peace in Somerset in 1—3 Edward II., 1307—10, and had received another such appointment at the date of his death (Parl. Writs, ii., pt. ii., 12, 14, 28, 31, 110), and had custody in 1312 of the county of Devon and the King's castle of Exeter, and in 1315 of the counties of Somerset and Dorset, and of the castle of Shireborn (Abbrev. Rot. Orig., i., 186, 223). The date of his death is shewn by his last shrievalty of Somerset and Dorset in 9 Edward II., "Matheus de Furneaux (Johannes filius et heres eiusdem Mathei pro eodem M., Johannes Payn attornatus eiusdem Johannis pro eo, Matilda quae fuit uxor et una executorum testamenti eiusdem Mathei, Robt. Roo attornatus eiusdem Matilde pro ea) de tribus primis quarteriis anni." See also the order of Escheat in 1317 (Abbrev. Rot. Orig., i., 332). His arms as given by Izaacke are those best known of Furneaux: "Gules, a bend between six crosses-crosslet flory or." His wife Matilda has dower assigned to her (Close Roll, 1318, Feb. 24). Her paternal arms (a bend fusily) appear, with the figure of a knight in chain armour, on a tombstone at Ashington ("Gent. Mag.," 1820, p. 209). One of her sisters appears to have married Sir Andrew Luttrell (Lyte, Dunster), and her brother Simon was an ancestor of the Malet family (Aske).

Note 6. Simon, as ex'or of his father Matthew, gives quittance of a debt which had been contracted to him in 1315 (Close Roll, p. 221). His marriage and family are given by Aske and Collinson as above. The latter states (i., 261) that in 1317 he acquired Stringston (ten miles west of Bridgewater) from William Fitchet. Lapford, in North Devon, came to him with his wife, and passed ultimately to the heirs of her sister Elizabeth St. John (Pole, "Devon," p. 428). The escheat after his death (Inq. p.m., ii., p. 212, No. 19) gives him as possessed of the manors of Culue (Kelve), Pery (Pury), Astinton (Ashington), Hathecombe, Compton Dondon (Dunden), and of lands in Wynghall, Holeford (Holford), and Fitington. Another list (ibid., ii., p. 21) in 1328 adds Stringeston, Wemedon, Chilton Trevett. Another escheat (ibid., iii., 206[b]), dated long after his death (1397), joins his name with that of Robert Seyntclere as holding lands at Andresey (? Wilts). In 1329 he pays a fine for licence in mortmain to grant land in Kylve and Stringeston, with the advowsons of those towns and reversions of land in Chilleton, etc., for five chaplains to celebrate daily in Kylve Church for the souls of him and his heirs, and of his father and grandfather, his wife and her father (Cal. of Pat. Rolls; Abbrev. Rot. Orig., ii., p. 33; Inq. p.m. ii., 18[b]; Collinson, iii., p. 533). He is witness in 1327 to a deed between the Dean of Wells and the Abbot of Glastonbury, and to an "inspeximus" of the King to a charter respecting Dunster in 1342 (Dugdale, i., 53; iv., 202). He is returned as man-at-arms in 1324, and is summoned to military service in 1325 and 1335 (Parl. Writs, ii., pt. i., 653, 701; Rot. Scot., i., 306); is, in 1325 and 1326, Commissioner of Array in Somerset, and deputed to certify names of those liable to take knighthood (Parl. Writs, ibid., 736, 739, 744), and in 1325, 1327, is charged (with Robert Say) with custody of Bridgewater Castle (Abbrev. Rot. Orig., i., 291, 300). In 1331 he receives pardon for a sum formerly due to the younger Despencer, and afterwards, by the latter's forfeiture, to the King (Cal. of Pat. Rolls). The last fifteen years of his life seem to be nearly a blank, but he was knight of the shire for Somerset, in the Parliament of 18 Edward III. (1344) summoned to Westminster, as he had been previously in that of 2 Edward III. (1328) summoned to Northampton. His arms also are given by Collinson as "Gules, a bend between six crosses-crosslet or," which arms are still preserved on some encaustic tiles at Cleve Abbey, near Dunster, to which probably he or his father may have been a benefactor. Pole gives the same arms (but with ground "azure") as those of Furneaux of Lapford. He died 24 Edward III., 1351 (Aske). His only son William had died in his lifetime (Collinson, i., 262).

Note 7. Elizabeth Furneaux was 30 years old in 33 Edward III., 1360 (MS. Cal. of Escheats, xix., p. 87). Collinson states (i., p. 262) that she inherited large estates amounting to eight knights' fees and a quarter; also that in her widowhood, 8 Richard II. (1385-6), she founded a chantry in the Abbey of Athelney for two chaplains to say Mass daily (except Good Friday) for the good estate of William Aungier and Henry Rodham, also of her the Lady Elizabeth, the Lady Alice Stafford, the Lady Maud Stafford, and Robert Wrench, and all other friends and benefactors of the said Elizabeth, and for the souls of Sir John Blount, Sir Simon de Furneaux and Alice his wife, Sir Henry Umfraville and Isabel his wife, Sir William Blount and Maud his wife, the Lady Julian Talbot, the Lady Elizabeth Cornwail, Sir Brian Cornwail her son, Sir Richard Stafford and Sir Richard Stafford the younger his son, Robert Flete, and Robert Stockton, and for all her friends and benefactors deceased. Annual obits to be kept of all the above persons.

Note 8. The first husband of Alice Blount is mentioned in Note 7. Collinson (iii., p. 532) gives the family as of Hook, Dorset. Her second marriage must have been after 1385. Her second husband is spoken of by Collinson (i., p. 263) as son of Sir William Stury (Governor of Guernsey and Jersey in 1354), as chosen in 1371 to conduct the King of Navarre to his kingdom, and as afterwards eminent under Richard II., but ultimately in disfavour as a Lollard. He died about 1403. His wife, though styled the Lady Alice Stury, Lady of Culve (Kilve), still bore on her seal the arms of Stafford (a chevron within a bordure) impaling Blount (barry nebuly). On her death in 1421 a partition of her estates was made among the representatives of four daughters of Sir Matthew—Elianor, Hawise, Joan, and Margaret—all of whose descendants are traced, in some cases down to his own time, by Aske (see Note 5), also (with a few variations or errors) in Harl. 807, fo. 43, and some particulars as to the lands are added by Collinson. The pedigree in Visitation of Somerset (see Note 3) gives descendants of Margaret only. It may be added that it is through descent from one of these lines that the arms of Furneaux are borne by St. Barbe, and through another that they appear as one of sixteen quarterings on the house at Barre's Court in the parish of Bitton, Gloucester, and on the monument of Sir Thos. Newton of that place in Bristol Cathedral. (See Ellacombe's "History of Parish of Bitton," 1881.)

Note 9. John Furneaux is mentioned by Collinson (iii., p. 213) also as his father's ex'or in his last shrievalty (Note 5). In an escheat after his father's death (Inq. p.m., i., 288, No. 27) he is described as of "Chilleton hamlet extent," Devon (see Note 2), being tenant in chief by the third part of one knight's fee, and his sister Matilda, wife of Bartholomew Payn, then (10 Edward II.) aged thirty, and Alice, then aged thirteen, daughter of his sister Dionisia (then apparently deceased), are his heirs (Harl. 6126, fo. 23; Cal. of Escheats, xix., fo. 75). In 1321 he receives pardon, as also Simon (see Note 6), of a debt owed to Hugh le Despencer, jun. At his death in 1336 he has "Childeton medietas hameletti," also 10^{s} rent in West Coker, Somerset (Inq. p.m., ii., 65, No. 19). Alice, who claims heirship, is then wife of William Grede (ibid., iv., p. 441^{a}; Harl. 6126, fo. 8). She and her aunt Matilda are not mentioned in the partition at the death of Alice Stury (Note 8), and thus appear to have left no issue.

No later mention of the Furneaux name appears to be found in Somerset, and evidently the male issue of Sir Matthew is exhausted. It is possible that Henry or the elder Matthew had sons not recorded, and this seems suggested by the mention of a John de Furneaus, King's Clerk, in Somerset in 1285 (Cal. of Pat. Rolls, p. 101), and a Henry de Forneaux or Furneux presented to the church of Chew, Somerset, in 1328 (ibid., pp. 330, 363). That some branch of this family may possibly have migrated into Devon and become mixed with those already there is suggested by the fact that our earliest traceable ancestors in that county kept up the names Henry and Matthew (see Pedigree in "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," New Series, vol. ii., p. 171).

Genealogical Notes and Queries.

THE FIGTREE CHURCH, NEVIS.

[Our attention has been drawn by Mr. Arthur Leveson Gower to the following letter which appeared in "The Times;" it contains an interesting addition to the Monumental Inscriptions abroad already given in our pages.]

SIR,—We have in her Majesty's ship Indefatigable just visited the island of Nevis in the West Indies, and naturally went and inspected the Church of St. John's (the Figtree Church), where the register of Lord Nelson's marriage on March 11, 1787, with Mrs. Nisbet is preserved and shewn to visitors. It reads as follows: "1787, March 11 .... Horatio Nelson, Esquire, captain of his Majesty's ship Boreas, to Frances Herbert Nisbet, widow."

There is also the following inscription on a monument in the chancel which refers to the great naval commander: "William Woolward, of this island, esquire, died the 18th February, 1779, aged 53 years. He married Mary, daughter of Thomas Herbert, Esquire, to whose joint memory this tablet is erected by their only daughter, Frances Herbert, who was first married to Josiah Nisbett, M.D., and since to Rear-Admiral Nelson, who, for his very distinguished service, has been successively created a Knight of the Bath and a peer of Great Britain by the title of Baron Nelson of the Nile."

It will be noticed that Nisbet is recorded in the register with one "t," on the monument with two.

What struck us was the decay the church was falling into for want of funds, especially the small organ, which seemed to be past repair and quite out of tune, the keys being eaten away by damp and vermin. Want of funds is the only reason for this. In this historical church there are some old monuments dating back to 1685. Would it not be an act of generosity to the present Vicar if funds could be collected by the admirers of the greatest naval commander of the age to keep his memory green in these islands, where he passed so many years of his early service as captain, and earned for himself a distinguished name, to replace this organ by a new one, and place a few pounds to the credit of the "Church Restoration Fund"? It is understood that this church is supported solely by voluntary contributions, which in these hard times in the West Indies does not amount to much. At present shelter is given there to a number of natives rendered homeless by the late hurricane.

The Vicar would, no doubt, be only too pleased to furnish any information respecting the church, etc.

I am, etc.,
A NAVAL OFFICER.

Reviews.

The Publications of the Parish Register Society. 1899. E. A. Fry, Hon. Secretary, 172 Edmund Street, Birmingham.

AMONGST the ten Registers published by the Parish Register Society are those of Lydlinch in Dorset, Ledbury in Herefordshire, and Battlefield, Sibdon Carwood, and Shipton in Shropshire. All being small Registers, the Society does well in issuing so many, for with the burning of Erith Registers in our recollection—while the ever-recurring repairs are going on, being stowed away in a barn meanwhile—every Register printed is an historical storehouse of genealogy saved, and all the minor parishes of our Counties would soon be secured from obliteration. The first portion of Lydlinch Registers for instance had lost its cover, and the third portion was roughly preserved by a piece of parchment and sewn anyhow. The large Registers of towns ought to be printed by local means, for when they make several volumes it is hardly to be expected that strangers will subscribe to them so soon when they can get ten smaller ones in a year, printed for a subscription of a guinea.

[illegible]

In our own experience, no full-sized volume of Registers ever pays its expenses of printing, except backed up by the Members of a Society, and therefore the good work of the Parish Register Society has already done an immense service to genealogical history by undertaking the issue of so many small Registers (twenty-six of which have been printed in three years), which are more often exposed to every chance of destruction. We still hope that the House of Commons will render it compulsory on every parish to have correct transcripts made for the clergyman and churchwardens, and two copies for the State—for Somerset House and the Record Office—where means cannot be found for printing them locally. We note, with respect to the Shipton Registers, that they had been transcribed by Miss Rouse Boughton up to 1648, with index, and afterwards by the Editor, the Rev. Gilbert H. F. Vane, with the permission of the custodian; and those of Ledbury by the late Mr. G. H. Piper, who died in 1897, aged 78. Mr. William Phillips, F.L.S., made out the copy of the Battlefield Registers, from which they are now printed. May there be found in every parish a lady and gentlemen equally impressed with the value of Registers as to make a good copy of them while possible.

The Journal of the Ex Libris Society. Vol. IX., October to December 1899. London: A. and C. Black, Soho Square, W.

THE frontispiece to the October Part has a delicately drawn book-plate of Lady Stanley, the wife of the African Explorer, drawn by Mrs. Jane E. Cook, Wantage, which, for artistic grouping, is as good an example as possible, particularly the pose of the little ragged model. The bordering, too, is exceptionally good. The article on Urn Plates is again taken up by the Editor—eighty of them being fully described, besides eight illustrations. The plate of Mr. C. Blackwell Foster, too, by Mr. W. R. Weyer of Norwich, is another good example of modern design, having a grape vine artistically drawn as a border.

The November Part is chiefly taken up in giving examples of Urn Plates and plates for identification, now numbering 396.

The December Part has four plates designed by Major Ricketts, all too heavy in our opinion, and also the old arms of the Humes of Polwarth, three of them being given. There is also an article on the Ferrar Plates, with examples, the last of which, by Mr. J. Vinycomb, being the most artistic and heraldic. Another good example of work is the plate of Edward Stibbs, Chester Herald from 1721 to 1739, shewing elaborate mantling. Each Part is well got up, and the work will end the year with the approbation of all its readers.

The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. Vol. VII., No. 2, October 1899. Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, U.S.A.

IN the present Part the Reminiscences of Western Virginia by Major John Redd are most interesting, as are also some letters of Washington. The genealogy of the Fitzhugh family is given, with a plate of arms and portrait of Henry Fitzhugh, who lived at Bedford, England, and whose son was the immigrant, and had practised for the Bar. He came to Virginia in 1670, and settled on the Potomac, on an estate called Bedford. The genealogies of the Payne, Foote, Rodes, Pryor, and Booker families are also given, and altogether the Part is very interesting.
